The New Is Old.
Diocletian Proves It.
U. S. Intervention.
Curious Sugar Deal.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THERE ARE no NEW IDEAS, only new ways of making old ideas work successfully. In Alexandria, 130 B.C., a primitive steam "reaction turbine" worked successfully.

A Frenchman, the Marquis de Jouffroy, developed the steamboat and demonstrated it on the River Saone long before Fulton's time, and Fulton, in a letter to Des Blancs, admits it.

ALL IS old, even NRA. Mr. George D'Utassy reminds you of the edict of Diocletian, Roman Emperor of the third and fourth centuries, A. D.

In A. D. 301 the emperor, to offset public suffering, caused by bad harvests and speculation, ordained maximum prices for foodstuffs, and for labor.

More drastic than Gen. Johnson, he fixed death and deportation as penalties for exceeding his maximum prices. It did not work.

ECONOMY IN government is old also. When Trajan approached Rome to assume control of the world's greatest empire, the populace rushed to meet him, expecting the usual gorgeous procession of chariots and men-at-arms.

Instead they saw "only a tall powerful man, with a remarkably upright figure, and head prematurely blanched, on foot, accompanied by his wife and some private friends who had gone out to meet him."

TRAJAN WAS a success. Of his twelve immediate imperial predecessors, seven or eight had been assassinated. He walked about Rome unprotected, and without new taxation could always find money for magnificent public works, and for two great wars.

He was so popular that when emperors after him were installed, the populace would cry out:

"Mayst thou be more fortunate than Augustus and better than Trajan."

PERHAPS AT future inaugurations, our crowds will shout to new presidents:

"Mayst thou be greater than Washington, more deeply loved than Lincoln, and greater than Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Being a pagan, Trajan had to go to hell, as a matter of course, but even there he was fortunate. Dante, in his Divine Comedy, tells you Trajan was released from hell, through the earnest prayers of Pope Gregory the Great, who could not bear to have such a fine man suffering forever.

P. S.—ALWAYS be careful not to show familiarity with the great, on thrones or in public office. George Brandes tells how Voltaire, having arranged a magnificent entertainment for the vain French king, asked, when it was over:

"Trajan, est il content?"

"Is Trajan satisfied?"

The king turned his back on him. Worms may amuse kings, but must not think to flatter them, by comparing them with anyone else.

NO AMERICAN will say that Cubans are not "up to date." When Machado left, and news wires and sources were reopened, the able Havana newspaper, El Mundo, demanded first of all "the complete baseball scores for several days back."

CUBANS, DRIVING out Machado, emphasized their desire to avoid "the shame of United States intervention."

The United States is as glad as any Cuban can be that intervention has been made unnecessary. But there was one case of intervention by the United States that was not considered "shameful." That was the intervention by Uncle Sam that put Spain out of Cuba and gave Cuba to the Cuban people.

IT IS to be hoped that this country will be able to help Cuba, with her difficult sugar problem, although we have crop problems of our own, more than enough.

Sugar is a complicated crop. For instance our Navy buys sugar for warships in the Pacific and has just given a huge order to Japanese sugar traders, because they can undersell growers that produce sugar in the American Philippines. Japanese buy sugar from Java, sell it at a profit, for half the cost price in Manila, and pay no United States tariff. Labor in Java is paid very little; there is no NRA there.

Why could not the Navy buy sugar from southern cane growers, or beet sugar growers near Salt Lake City? All very puzzling.

ONE THING is certain MANUFACTURED sugar used in this country, in our naval ships or anywhere, on American territory, should be refined in this country. We should at least keep the work of refining sugar for American workers and American refineries. Mr. Green of the American Federation of Labor might interest himself in that.

RUSSIA ANNOUNCES that her problem is solved, her plans a success, because this year's bountiful crops will provide plenty of wheat for her people and fodder and grain for her cattle.

We worry, because we shall have 360,000,000 bushels of wheat TOO MANY, and do not know what to do with it. Farmers will be told, by the government, to plant less wheat, and to make up for money they might have made, the government will give them from public funds up to $130,000,000. That will puzzle Russia, paying farmers not to produce.

It may also puzzle the angels above, considering how many on earth are hungry.

COAL PEACE DUE, SAYS PINCHOT

Code Outlook Bright, Governor Says at White House

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—After a conference at the White House with President Roosevelt, Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, today announced that prospects "look bright" for an early settlement of coal code differences.

Meanwhile Mrs. Pinchot visited officials of the Agriculture Department in connection with problems of dairymen in Northeastern Pennsylvania.

Pinchot said he and Roosevelt talked particularly about the necessity for prompt action and the early signing of codes for the coal and oil industries. He declared:

"The prospects look bright for both industries. I think conditions are becoming satisfactory in the coal fields and I believe that the code will be agreed upon and signed soon."

Pinchot also discussed Pennsylvania's portion of the public works money. Earlier he sought a total of $24,000,000, half for roads and half for public works. Today he advised the President that applications were coming into his office from municipalities seeking money for sewer systems, electric plants and the like.

Mrs. Pinchot said she came down to talk to Agriculture Department officials about the needs of the Northeast Pennsylvania dairy interests. They have been selling milk below production costs for a long time now, she said, and something must be done about them.

She did not intend to visit Clyde L. King, now head of the dairy products division of the Agriculture Department. King, who was formerly a member of the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission, was recently removed from office by Pinchot.

MOBS AVENGE VICTIMS OF MACHADO'S REIGN; DE CESPEDES PERILED

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—The Navy dispatched the cruiser Richmond for Cuba today in addition to the three destroyers ordered to the island last night for the protection of American citizens.

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

International News Service.

HAVANA, Aug. 14.—Two American warships, dispatched by President Roosevelt to insure the safety of American citizens in Cuba, arrived off Havana shortly before dawn today.

Just as the American men-of-war steamed into the harbor at dawn, one of the last traces of the deposed Machado regime disappeared with the precipitate flight of Gen. Albert Herrera, Machado's minister of war and military dictator for a day.

Herrera fled with members of his family to escape the tidal wave of retribution meted out by liberated Cuba against pillars of the Machado regime, believed to have taken a toll of nearly 50 dead and property damage than ran into the millions.

NO INTERVENTION

Under specific orders from President Roosevelt to protect and not intervene, the destroyer Taylor anchored in the middle of Havana harbor while the Claxton took up a post off Morro Castle. A third warship was expected at Manzanillo from the Caribbean Sea during the morning.

In strange and pleasing contrast to the violence and bloodshed of the week-end, Havana presented a quiet and almost normal appearance today.

The streets were cleared of the debris and litter left by the bloodthirsty mob which resorted to arson and pillage to efface traces of the Machado reign; and the wild hysteria which followed Machado's downfall gave way to calm reconstruction.

Signalizing President De Cespedes' first success, the general strike which preceded the revolution came to an end.

MARKETS OPEN

Markets opened at daybreak, and for the first time in a week, deliveries of milk, ice and coal were resumed. Taxicabs began operating and street car barns hummed with activity as preparations went forward to resume service at noon.

Grocery and drug stores opened their doors at the regular hour. One after another merchants rolled up the iron shutters which defied entry by police and troops while the Machado regime was being overthrown, and Havana's picturesque hucksters once again streamed through the streets, calling their wares to householders and passersby.

The Casa Grande and El Encanto, the city's two largest department stores, posted notices they would reopen at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Cafes resumed business and served out drinks to joyous Cubans anxious to drink a toast to the "new deal.'

Large crowds gathered along

NEW VIOLENCE IN HAVANA

HAVANA, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—As two United States ships of war steamed into Havana Harbor today to protect American property, renewed outbursts of looting and arson impelled the Cuban military authorities to order their soldiers to fire on all persons violating public order.

Two of Gen. Machado's country estates were sacked in celebration of the victorious revolution which forced the general to abdicate and take refuge in the Bahamas.

The presence of two American warships in the harbor exercised a salutary effect, officials said, and hope was expressed that the violence attending the revolution was near its end.

Sixty omnibuses of the Cuba Company, now bankrupt, were burned by company employes who had demanded that their $25 deposits, previously posted to insure the honest performance of their duty, be returned.

A military edict barred parades and manifestations of all kinds and prohibited the carrying of weapons. The sacking and burning of houses will be severely repressed, the edict said. It cautioned all citizens to remain in their homes after 8 p. m.

Police announced that they were searching for 27 cars which, they said, belonged to the "Machado gangsters." Thirteen of these cars were armored and it was said that their occupants were disguised as soldiers, sailors and members of the police force. Others carried banners of the ABC society, one of the organizations which led the successful fight to oust Machado.

BODY IN MINE, MURDER SEEN

The body of Frank Joy, 40, was found buried beneath a ton of slate 100 yards in the Lloyd Grimm mine on the Pitcairn-Monroeville road. A miner, Charles Smith, noticed the feet protruding from the pile.

Two deep wounds in the head indicated Joy had been slain. His auto was parked just outside the mine.

3,000 MINERS END STRIKE

More than 3,000 miners went back to work today in Washington County mines, bringing the tie-ups in Washington and Allegheny counties near the settlement which federal mediators are striving to effect.

In the mines of the Bethlehem Mines Corporation at Marianna, Cokeburg and Ellsworth, 1,600 men resumed their jobs this morning. The men decided to return to work and leave the settlement of the dispute in the hands of NRA.

Whether the company had accepted union check weighmen could not be determined. General Supt. J. J. McCune refused to amplify a statement that "the mines are working."

Roosevelt, Johnson Meet to Map Out Future Program

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—The giant pinions of NRA's blue eagle were held today by officials to be hovering over a quarter of the nation's 40,000,000 workers.

And to assure that the wage-raising, work-spreading bird would cover even more territory, President Roosevelt and his helpers launched a new series of meetings to map out the future program.

Hugh S. Johnson, the National Recovery Administrator, after his return from St. Louis, where he spoke last night, was to confer with President Roosevelt to map plans for spurring ahead the campaign for placing a Blue Eagle in every shop window.

Late today Johnson was to receive a report from spokesmen for the American Newspaper Publishers Association upon a proposed code for the industry. Last

Cuban Students Assail Congress

CONVICTS RIOT, ESCAPE PRISON

BOSTON, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Several prisoners were believed to have escaped during a riotous outbreak in the House of Correction on Deer Island just before the noon hour today.

A half hour later prison officials reported two had been returned and they were checking to determine how many had made good their break. They believed the number did not exceed three inmates.

The uproar began, officials said, just before the lunch period. About a score of inmates made a break for liberty during the trouble. Several, estimated at four or five, seized a truck and drove across Shirley Gut, a narrow shallow channel which separates the island from the mainland.

Later, guards returned to the island with the truck and two of the escaped inmates. Other guards meanwhile succeeded in quieting the other prisoners.

Cuban Consulate In New York Raided

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—A crowd of about 40 persons raided the office of the Cuban consul general at 17 Battery place today and received a bust of former President Gerardo Machado.

A request for police assistance was made to police headquarters.

Sally, All Dressed Up, Tumbles Into Lake

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—Sally Rand folded up the fans that were her "costume" in the dance that won her fame in the Streets of Paris at the World's Fair and headed today for a stage and screen career.

But a mishap that chilled her more than had the icy stares of police morals inspectors occurred when she left the World's Fair grounds at midnight.

She fell, screaming, into Lake Michigan.

She was pulled out of the lake and was taken to the Coast Guard station, and there revived.

The pretty dancer suddenly terminated her engagement at the Fair last night when a brief announcement was made by the management telling of her departure for "the stage and screen." Salary differences were said to be the reason.

Boy Admirer Loses Leg, Babe Ruth Grieves

Sympathy softened the features of Babe Ruth today when he was told that a boy's hero worship for him had cost the boy the loss of a leg.

James Jack, 16, of Oil City, was determined to see Ruth play with the Yankees here today. He boarded a freight train with a friend. Near Franklin, Jack fell between two cars, and one leg was crushed. Surgeons amputated it.

Told of this, the King of Swat's face clouded:

"Gee, that's too bad. Just a kid, too."

The Babe will autograph a baseball and send it to the boy. Not to make up for his loss, but—

"Maybe it'll cheer him up."

the sea wall to watch activity aboard the American warships, but their presence was due more to curiosity than anxiety or fear.

Both American and Cuban businessmen and authorities were hopeful that the presence of warships off the coast would have a telling moral effect in restoring peace to this strife-torn island and put an end to the "war of revenge" launched by the populace against remaining symbols of Machado's despotism.

The victims for the most part have been leaders and members of Machado's dreaded secret strong-arm squad, the "Porra," while the property sacked and looted has included the presidential palace, government offices and the homes of members of the deposed President's cabinet.

This correspondent, the first to board any of the American warships, learned that the "expeditionary force" had no intention at present of landing on Cuban soil. No marines are aboard the vessels. Lieut. Commander George C. Howard, of the Taylor, said:

"We have been instructed to come here and anchor in the harbor.

"We have no other plans. We will give every assistance in our power."

The commanders of the warships were scheduled to call upon Provisional President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes with United States Ambassador Sumner Welles during the morning.

Herrera, former Secretary of War, followed the example of former President Gerardo Machado in fleeing from the anger of Cuba's newly liberated populace. He had hoped to obtain the presidency himself, but sentiment turned against him after United States Ambassador Welles banned his succession to the office as an army man.

GUARD FOR HERRERA

The ship sailed 17 hours ahead of schedule, to insure him protection. A huge guard of police and troops surrounded the docks and all traffic in the vicinity was halted for two hours.

DE CESPEDES CABINET

Secretary of Interior—Frederico Laredo Bru.

Secretary of Justice—Dr. Carlos Saladrigas.

Secretary of Agriculture—Rafael Santos Jimenez.

Secretary of Public Instruction—Dr. Guillermo Bell.

Secretary of Sanitation—Antonio Presno.

WELLES CONSULTED

The appointments were made after the provisional President conferred with Ambassador Welles. De Cespedes assumed the portfolio of Secretary of State after it was declined by Cocme de la Torriente, former Cuban ambassador to Washington.

Herrera fled accompanied by Alberto Barreras, former president of the Cuban Senate, whose departure caused a tremendous surprise. Also with him were Senator Lorenzo Fernandez Hermo and Carmelo Urguiaga, leader of the Popular party, as well as Miguel Angel Gonzalez Rodriguez, captain of the port of Havana, and Francesco Rodriguez Arango, both nephews of Herrera.

The wives of Herrera, Barreras and Rodriguez accompanied them, as did Herrera's two sons, Fifo and Albertico. Observers believed the entire island would be stunned when it learned of the flight of the entire Herrera family.

STREETS CLEARED

Extraordinary precautions were taken to insure Herrera's safe get-away. Military officials issued orders clearing the streets, and troops launched great activity in scattering loiterers.

The Malecon sea wall and boulevard were brilliantly lighted to enable Ambassador Welles and the others to avoid darkened streets.

The entire episode, which occurred almost simultaneously with the arrival of the American warships in Havana harbor, was carried out in an atmosphere charged with secrecy. The steame Quirigua passed the incoming warships in the narrows.

A few moments later, as the destroyers settled into the harbor, the Claxton signaled by searchlight to the Taylor.

Then the commander of the Taylor came ashore, immediately taking an automobile for the American embassy to confer with Ambassador Welles. When the American destroyers arrived, all was quiet in the harbor.

DE CESPEDES PERILED

Despite the general jubilation at De Cespedes' succession to the presidency, an attempt was made to assasinate him four hours after he took the oath of office.

An automobile filled with men believed to have been Machado supporters, striving to effect a last, desperate revenge for the reverse suffered by their chief, sped past the home of the new President, spraying it with machine gun bullets.

No one at the house was hit, but two soldiers were reported wounded by a volley of lead as the gunmen escaped.

STRIKE ENDED

President De Cespedes' efforts to restore order appeared likely to meet with success.

The general strike ended with unanimous agreement among union leaders to return to work during the day after he had obtained the President's personal promise to restore civil liberties at the earliest possible moment.

Business was expected to resume its normal course, with stores advertising Monday sales and groceries, and milk dealers and icemen agreeing to resume business, thus assuring the end of the food shortage.

Presence of the American warships caused a mixed sentiment, members of the new government welcoming them, and army leaders resenting their arrival, because it would be a serious blow to the prestige of the military should American Marines land on Cuban soil.

SAILORS WELCOMED

"The presence of the warships will be very helpful in restoring order provided the commanders make no effort to land sailors or Marines. We have the situation under control and the rioting has stopped."

He said he was seeking authority to kill looters and thieves on sight, and that the President instructed him to stamp out all forms of disorders.

In some quarters it is feared that Ambassador Welles overplayed his hand in summoning the warships. He is regarded as a hero for driving Machado from power, although the revolting army gets official credit for this. But some criticism has been voiced because he approved selection of De Cespedes as president.

These same sources predict an outbreak of public resentment if American Marines land.

The city was orderly during the night, although there was some looting and burning in the suburbs and provinces.

The greatest excitement in Havana was caused when two cars filled with gunmen and machine guns roared through the streets firing bullets at police and troops. One of the cars was identified by its license plates as belonging to Herrera. The gunmen escaped after failing to kill or wound anyone.

PROPERTY DESTROYED

In outlying sections mobs were reported destroying property owned by friends of the Macado regime. The damage was estimated at $5,000,000 by an International News Service survey, despite police estimates at a much lower figure.

Estimates of the dead in the last outbreak were placed at 30. They were chiefly members of the Porra, secret police organization, who were hunted down and killed without mercy.

The houses of 20 prominent Machado leaders were wrecked, many of them literally destroyed.

All furniture and glass was stolen or ruined, and it was not unusual to see expensive pianos lying demolished in the streets.

TAPESTRIES SCATTERED

Plumbing and statuary were smashed and books, silver and rare treasures of tapestry that escaped the looting mobs were strewn on the streets for blocks.

As a sequel to the vicious carnage which marked Machado's departure, his successor was sworn into office in a simple ceremony, surrounded by his family, close friends and high government officials.

He took the oath on the veranda of his Vedado section home, after which he embraced his two sons, urging them to be loyal to their country. They were active oppositionists to the Machado regime.

Machado 'Spy' Slain In Santiago Rioting

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Gustavo Sanchez, alleged confidant and informer for ex-President Machado, was shot and killed here yesterday in a demonstration by a crowd celebrating the downfall of Machado.

Later thousands of persons marched to the A B C cemetery to pay homage to those who had been slain in recent years in disorders attributed to Machado henchmen.

De Cespedes Occupies Palace as 10,000 Cheer

International News Service.

HAVANA, Aug. 14.—Cuba's new President, Dr. Carlos Manuel De Cespedes, moved into the presidential palace today while a crowd of 10,000 citizens stood outside cheering with almost as much enthusiasm as that with which a mob looted the palace Saturday.

The new chief executive occupied the building at 10:45 a. m., as troops stood at attention and military bands played Cuba's national anthem. The President stood still in salute on the palace steps as the music was played.

De Cespedes, hailed as the "Deliverer of Cuba," was cheered wildly after the brief ceremony. He met the cabinet and their wives, the latter kissing him as some wept with joy.

The palace was temporarily renovated after the looting of Saturday's mobs celebrating the deposition of the hated Gerardo Machado.

CUBAN EXILES SPEED RETURN

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(INS.)—Cubans in all parts of the United States, long exiled from their native land, are hurrying to New York to sail for Havana, Cuban leaders said today.

Expressing jubilation at the overthrow of the Machado regime, the leaders prepared to head large groups of Cubans returning to their homeland.

Many of the exiled Cubans gathered here with Miguel Carreras Col. Carlos Mendieta, head of the Union Nacionalista, and Dr Carlos de la Torre, head of the junta which worked in New York to bring about the fall of Machado.

Col. Mendieta, when told of the killing of the head of "the Porra," secret police system organized by Machada to assassinate, according to Mendieta, those whose opposition he could not otherwise do away with, exclaimed:

"Jimenez dead? Glorious! That is the end of Cuba's reign of terror."

ADVISOR OF NRA QUITS IN RIFT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—Declaring that consumers of the nation will not be fully protected under the present National Recovery Administration plans, William F. Ogburn, Chicago University savant, today resigned from the Consumers' Advisory Board.

Ogburn resigned and left for Chicago after an unsuccessful effort to hold another conference with Administrator Hugh S. Johnson.

In deciding to leave the organization entirely, Ogburn disclosed that he had no personal quarrel with Mrs. Charles Rumsey, chairman of the Consumers' Advisory Board, but that he was fearful of the entire program of the administration as related to consumers.

Ogburn had been named to the statistical board and Huston Thompson, former chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, designated by Secretary of Commerce Roper and Johnson to succeed him on the advisory board.

New President Of Cuba Lauds Stand of U. S.

By CARLOS MANUEL DE CESPEDES

Provisional President of Cuba.

HAVANA, Aug. 14.—I have received the congratulations of the Cuban people with intimate satisfaction and I cannot express my gratitude because I understand the people have said more than I can say to any person. They are the ideal I represent.

I have taken possession of this high and responsible office at a difficult time and I shall do my best to aid my people. I believe this to have been an epoch-making change.

The people of Cuba have always been grateful for the co-operation rendered by the American people in obtaining Cuban independence. We have now to be still more grateful for the added demonstration of friendship shown us in this trying time by the American people and the American government, and their sincere respect for Cuba's independent sovereignty.

I am confident the economic arrangements being discussed between the two countries will reach a satisfactory and successful solution which will bring about Cuba's economic prosperity and greatly benefit the interests of the United States.

I had the opportunity of knowing the American people during my long service as minister of my country in Washington, where I learned to appreciate their sincerity of friendship and the real feeling of the American people toward Cuba.

RAPS COSTELLO PROSECUTION

International News Service.

SALEM, Mass., Aug. 14.—With a denunciation of the state for trying Mrs. Jessie B. Costello for the poison death of her husband "on suspicion," Attorney William G. Clarke today made a final plea to the jury of 12 married men to free the 31-year-old mother of three children.

There was tense drama as the white-haired counsel, himself ill, paced before the jury and in husky voice brought to a close the four-week battle to save Jessie from the electric chair. Only the jury, Judge Frederick W. Fosdick, the counsel, the defendant and the press were allowed in the courtroom, while a throng of more than 2,000 waited outside.

Jessie sat calmly and silently as her attorney addressed his final arguments and awaited the momoment when she herself would stand before them and make her own appeal, declaring:

"I am innocent. Send me home to my three little children."

She hoped to keep the promise she made her baby boy and two daughters that:

"Mamma will be home by Tuesday night."

ANARCHY FEAR GRIPS CUBANS, SHIPS STAY

Roosevelt to Keep U. S. Vessels There Until Quiet Reigns

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—President Roosevelt intends to keep the three American warships in Cuban waters until there is reasonable assurance that there will be no outbreak of anarchy in the island republic, it was said at the State Department today.

It is hoped such assurance will be forthcoming in time for the vessels to withdraw late today, but if Ambassador Sumner Welles considers the situation still dangerous the ships will remain indefinitely.

Welles reported to the State Department this morning that the presence of the warships already has had a varied beneficial effect in calming disorderly elements. The situation, he reported, is satisfactory. However, there is still some fear that mob violence might develop again.

FEARS NEW VIOLENCE

Welles reported that while it looked as though the situation was heading back in the right direction, he was not quite certain when the lid might blow off again.

Officials emphasized that the presence of the destroyers was for a moral effect only. Their presence has the approval of the new Cuban President, whose consent was sought before the vessels were ordered to the scene.

The decision to send the ships was prompted late yesterday by fear of anarchy breaking out. Welles reported that to the astonishment of the new President and himself, rioting started yesterday afternoon. The army commenced to fraternize with the mob and there was considerable drinking.

SITUATION TENSE

Welles cabled the situation was becoming as dangerous as a powder magazine and none could tell at what hour anarchy would seize the situation and sweep over the island.

Officials said it was strongly the opinion of those best informed that two or three American warships should drop in for the moral effect it would have in quieting the situation.

The presence of the warships had the desired effect almost immediately, and this morning the army was getting better control of the situation. Military patrols kept the people off the street last night, and this morning motors and taxicabs reappeared. Street cars and railway are expected to commence operating late today.

CAMBRIA BANK HEAD DIES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(INS.)—John H. Waters, 74, banker of Johnstown, Pa., died at Emergency Hospital here at 3:50 a. m. today of a cerebral hemorrhage, after an illness of less than four days. He was stricken last Thursday while pleading for a reorganization of his bank before the comptroller of the currency.

Members of the banker's family, and his personal physician, Dr. Joseph Wagner, of Philadelphia and Johnstown, were with him at the end. The body is to be returned to his home town later today.

Waters was president of the United States National Bank of Johnstown. When stricken he was pleading it should be reopened on the basis of 75 cents on the dollar. His position was opposed bitterly by Eddie McCloskey, Mayor of the city, who demanded reopening only on the basis of 100 per cent payment.

The comptroller had authorized reopening of the bank on a restricted basis, and the meeting at which Waters was stricken, had been called after complaint by the fighting Mayor of Johnstown.

FREED AT 72, PREFERS PEN

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Release of Joe Buzzard, 72, who has spent more than 30 years in jails, was delayed at the Eastern Penitentiary today after Lancaster County authorities declined to re-arrest him.

It had been planned to lodge a detainer against him on a charge of stealing two horses and buggies in 1931, but District Attorney Paul Mueller, of Lancaster County, after a conference with Justice of the Peace Paul Steigerwalt, announced that the detainer had been withdrawn.

Penitentiary officials said Buzzard would be held until he obtains a job a sponsor, or is given a home.

Buzzard said:

His brother, Abe, now 84, is serving from nine to 18 years for stealing automooile tires. Completion of this sentence will mean more than 50 years in one prison for Abe.

4 Injured Eating Trade War Bread

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 14.—(INS.)—Four persons were stricken ill today after eating rolls purchased at a bakery, said to be involved in a trade war. Ground glass had been sprinkled in the food, police said.

Those ill are Mrs. John B. Heck, Jr., her daughters, Jane, 4, and Shirley, 2, and a niece, Marie Dennis, 17. Surgeons took 37 pieces of fine glass from Miss Dennis in an operation.

U. S. Sailor Jailed For Hitler 'Slur'

BERLIN, Aug. 14.—(INS.)—The United States consul-general today was expected to send a representative to Stettin to investigate the case of Torsten T. Johnson, an American sailor jailed for six months on charges he said Chancellor Adolf Hitler is "a Czech and a Jew." American officials expressed amazement over the severity of the sentence.

Johnson, who said he spoke poor German, maintained he merely stated that "Czechs and Jews do not like Hitler."

MACHADO WAITS WORD FROM FRIENDS

Exiled Dictator Scans Sailings for Europe; Stands on Record

NASSAU, N. P., Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Efforts, largely futile, to communicate by telephone with friends and associates in Cuba and a shopping tour to replace clothing in which he fled Saturday occupied Gerardo Machado, deposed Cuban president, and his companions in exile today.

A wireless message was sent by the former chief executive to Key West for delivery to Mrs. Machado and members of their immediate family, who arrived by private yacht.

Machado's future plans, an associate said, depend on the answer he receives from Mrs. Machado and on advice from friends, in the United States and Europe.

Inquiries were made on his behalf concerning transportation facilities to Bermuda and European countries, the next sailing of which is August 28.

FLEES WITH FRIENDS

Machado was accompanied here by four friends, Dr. Eugenio Molinet, former Secretary of Agriculture; Dr. Jose Izquierdo, former Havana Mayor and chief of the Havana central district; Octavio Averhoff, former Secretary of Finance, and Manuel Mierno, personal aide. Two pilots and a Cuban aviation official shared the plane in which they fled Cuba.

Overtaken by darkness near Andros Island, in the Bahamas, Saturday evening, Pilot William McCullough decided to bring his plane down there for the night. The party waded ashore and started to tramp to a nearby settlement they had seen from the air, but after a short walk all decided they were too fatigued and turned back.

Natives attracted by the plane's landing cooked fish for the party and the former president and the others spent the night in the plane's cramped cabin.

EAGER FOR NEWS

Arriving at Nassau yesterday, the first word from Machado was a request for rest. He said:

"I am very tired. I do not wish to talk and I await further news from Cuba."

He defended his administration, declaring:

"I have been for eight years President of Cuba and the good must be taken with the bad, but I think I have given Cuba a constructive government.

"I invite you to speak to my Secretary of Finance, who will tell you that in the last month we had a surplus over expenditures. However, I do not wish to defend myself, because I believe my record will stand by itself.

"Cuba is a constitutional country and it has a right to a change of government.

"I am no longer a factor in Cuba's destiny. Anything I might say would only tend to complicate the situation.

STANDS ON RECORD

"I stand on my record. Most of it was good. Some of it was bad, perhaps. But I gave the people of Cuba many things they needed. I am willing that history shall record whether my administration was like my enemies picture it.

"I am willing to await developments and shall not try to interfere. Cuba would never, under my rule, and I do not believe under any other administration, repudiate its financial obligations. I hope the new order is successful in bringing Cuba back to its senses, for I love my country dearly. But I realize the futility of my trying to do anything."

Police Commandant Weibel said he did not consider Machado's life endangered on the island and that the police guard would be relaxed today.

Machado's Family Safe in Key West

KEY WEST, Fla., Aug. 14.—(AP.)—The wife, three daughters and other members of the immediate family of deposed President Machado of Cuba, arrived here today aboard the private yacht Gen. Juan Bruno Zayas.

In the party were Elvira Machado de M. chada wife of the exiled chief executive; Angela E. Machado de Obregon; Dr. Baldomero Grau, Rafael Jorge Sanchez and Jose Emilio Obregon, sons-in-law, and Maria de Los Anegeles Grau, Giselea Sanchez, Lutgardita Sanchez, Maria Eliira Obregon and Josefina Obregon, grand children.

Word of the arrival of the Machado yacht in the Key West channel quickly spread in the city and by the time it had reached the dock the surrounding streets were filled with people. There was no evidence of hostility.

From unofficial sources it was learned arrangements were in progress for a special train, to leave Key West shortly after noon today, to take the party north, probably to New York.

Ferrara Fears Collapse Of Cuban Republic

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Dr. Orestes Ferrara, former Cuban Secretary of State, who fled Havana with his wife in an airplane Saturday, told the Associated Press in a telephone conversation from Richmond, Va., today he believed the coming months would find conditions in Cuba growing "worse and worse."

Speaking from seclusion in his hotel in Richmond, Dr. Ferrara said conditions in Cuba were worse than anything that had happened in Petrograd during the Russian revolution. He said:

"What they call peace in Cuba is not peace and will not be peace. It is persecution. I believe that conditions in Cuba will grow worse and worse during the next six months.

"My hope at this time is that Cuba will not go to pieces but I foresee an epoch of turmoil."

Dr. Ferrara said his plans were to remain in Richmond long enough to buy necessary clothes and personal effects, which he was forced to leave in his flight from Havana, and then to go to New York probably in a day or two.

After that, he said, he hoped to write a book on Venetian diplomacy which he long had planned. He would do this, he said, probably in New York or in Europe.

NRA CAMPAIGN LOOSENS BUYING AVALANCHE HERE

TRADE GROUPS, INDIVIDUALS BACK MOVE

The Blue Eagle of the NRA brought increased buying to Pittsburgh's food and department stores last week, according to food and mercantile distributors.

People "are buying as never before during the past three years," in the words of one store executive. And what is even more significant, in the merchants' opinion, is the fact that more people are buying.

Friday and Saturday were two of the biggest days in the grocery trade for several months, according to an official of one of the largest food concerns in the city.

He said:

"There must be more people back at work, because there certainly were more customers and they're buying with confidence."

Mayor John S. Herron, honorary chairman of the campaign committee of the National Recovery Administration in Pittsburgh, will appeal for a concerted drive toward 100 per cent adoption of the President's NRA program in a radio address over Station WCAE today at 6:40 p. m.

20,000 ELIGIBLE

The drive in the Pittsburgh Postoffice region has substantially passed the half-way mark with 12,181 signers of blanket code certificates reported by Postmaster James B. Anderson. It has been estimated by Anderson that there are about 20,000 eligible employers in the district.

Hundreds of trade groups and individual enterprises are turning in their pledges daily, according to Wilson K. Ray, manager of the Pittsburgh office of the United States Department of Commerce, in charge of code problems in Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Libby, McNeill & Libby today announced the company has been placed under the NRA code, effective in all branches and plants throughout the country. Action followed governmental interpretation Saturday on handling of perishable food products.

Adoption of the code by the merchant-owned Credit Bureau, Inc., with which is affiliated the Retail Credit Men's Association, has been announced by Manager J. R. Truesdale.

The Y. M. C. A. of Pittsburgh, with 13 branches, has indorsed the national recovery program.

To further the move, a code of uniform store hours has been adopted by the McKees Rocks Retail Recovery Board. With the exception of food dealers, who may operate from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. daily, all other stores' hours will be from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m., under the plan.

DRUGGISTS OBJECT

Opposition to the hour limitation provision of the blanket code was voiced by tri-state druggists at a meeting Friday night in the Chamber of Commerce Building.

Declaring a work week of less than 50 hours will meet the opposition of 900 druggists in this district, the meeting adopted a resolution:

"To protest action by the National Recovery Administration to do anything to reduce the hours of general employes of drug stores below 50 hours."

The meeting was called by the Drug Institute of America which was formed last April to stabilize and co-ordinate the drug industry.

H. T. Mims, manager of the Ruskin Apartments, has been appointed one of nine to present a national code for the building management industry to the NRA today in Washington.

JOHN W. DAVIS FOR 8-HOUR DAY

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—John W. Davis wonders what people will do with all their leisure.

On his return yesterday from a vacation in England and Scotland, the lawyer was asked what he thought about the NRA. He replied:

"I have always believed and still do, that no man should work less than eight hours a day.

"What are we going to do with all these extra hours? How are we going to employ them? Honestly, how many men do you know who will use them for self-improvement, for reading a worthwhile book, or studying something they need? You know very, very few. And I know of very few."

NRA AFFECTING 10 MILLION

week this group accepted Johnson's proposed changes in the code as submitted and today they were to inform the Administrator whether the new draft was acceptable to the entire organization as represented by the board of directors.

Entering upon the last few weeks of his high pressure campaign to put 5,000,000 workers back on the job by Labor Day, Johnson had ready for President Roosevelt a complete outline of what had been done and his future plans.

Because the President has accepted much of the advice already given to him by Johnson, the expectation was that Mr. Roosevelt would approve an elaboration of the idea the administrator is advancing now, like in his St. Louis speech last night, when he said:

"If you see a place where there is none and you do any kind of business there you have a right to ask: 'Brother, where is your blue eagle?' And (if the answer does not to you seem fair) to take your business elsewhere. If every person did that for a week, there would not be a store or a shop or factory in this whole country without its blue eagle."

Meanwhile, in the absence of data on which to base correct figures, NRA officials declined today to estimate with any claimed attempt at accuracy, how far they had come toward their original goal of putting 5,000,000 unemployed back to work by Labor Day. But their guesses ranged as high as 1,500,000 and as low as 200,000.

10,000,000 AFFECTED

Score upon score of codes have been submitted, five major industrial plans approved, 40 to 50 industries authorized temporarily to substitute their own unapproved codes' hour and pay conditions for labor provisions in the Roosevelt blanket code.

Through temporary measures, such as that, NRA officials estimated fully 10,000,000 workers were or soon would be affected by the blue eagle. They carefully explained they did not mean that 10,000,000 new workers had been or would be hired, because of what had so far been done.

The most recent substitution in the blanket code enlisted, officials said, 1,500,000 employes of the electric light and power, telephone, natural gas producing and manufacturing, canning, construction, corn products, paper and pulp and other industries.

Among the industries to which authority previously had been given by Johnson to enter into the blanket agreement with labor sections of their own proposed programs, are millions of other workers, such as:

Petroleum, meat packing, radio, printing, ice cream, barber and beauty shops, laundry, confectionery, restaurant, wholesale drug, boot and shoe, retail coal merchants, paint, varnish and lacquer, retail lumber and evaporated milk.

The majority came in with a 40-hour week, a few had 35 and 36 hours, while the salary scales of all went upward from the $12 minimum weekly wage in the general blanket code.

The following five major industry codes have been approved and are in effect or soon will be:

Trade practice plans for coal, steel and oil have gone through the hearing stage and efforts now are being made to adjust the numerous differences developed within the business.

Cost of Removing Grade Crossings 21 Billions

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(INS.)—Complete elimination of grade crossings in the United States would cost $21,000,000,000, it was revealed today by the Federal Bureaus of Roads, now making plans for a limited number of these tragic points.

At the beginning of 1932 there were 238,017 such crossings, an increase of 399 for the previous year, although railroads are spending about $30,000,000 annually for their elimination. The growth is due to the greater number of main market highways.

SWOPE ACTIVE

Gerard Swope, chairman of the bituminous coal mediation board, is taking a hand in the strike at Montour No. 10. He has sought facts on the situation from the Pittsburgh Coal Company officials and all questions have been answered, according to L. E. Young, vice president.

About 1,000 men walked out at this mine Saturday. They failed to return to work today.

William Bell, union leader, reported he had been laid off by Supt. William Phillips on the pretext he had been drinking and that the men walked out in sympathy.

DRINKING CHARGED

Phillips said he had barred Bell from the mine Friday, but only because he had been drinking.

John D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal, said he had received no reports on the situation at the mine toady, but understood it was still down.

Mines of the H. C. Frick Coke Company in Fayette County were reported working today. Unionized workers were successful yesterday in electing their representatives as checkweighmen at several mines, notably Colonial Nos. 3 and 4.

DRUGGISTS ASK 56-HOUR CODE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—A 56-hour work week was proposed today by the National Association of Retail Druggists in a code of fair competition submitted to the Recovery Administration.

Hours of operation of stores would be limited to 52 hours per week unless operation hours were less than 52 before July 1, 1933.

The maximum hours would not apply to drug stores employing not more than two persons in towns of less than 2,500 population which are not part of a larger trading area. Registered pharmacists and executive employes would be excepted from the 56-hour week.

Minimum wages of $15 to $14 a week in the North and $14 to $13 a week in the South, based on population, were proposed.

In towns of less than 2,500 population the druggists proposed to increase all wages by not less than 20 per cent, provided such increase does not exceed $12 a week.

JOHNSON TURNS TO OIL INDUSTRY

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The oil question, which has split this giant industry, was taken up today by Hugh S. Johnson, National Recovery Administrator, with indications the industry would be brought completely under the NRA this week or a definite break reached.

The whole situation was to be laid before Johnson by Deputy Administrator K. M. Simpson, in charge of the oil, steel and coal codes. The situation was discussed by President Roosevelt and Simpson yesterday.

Apparently reliable reports to the effect that the NRA had agreed upon a compromise price fixing proposal, under which minimum prices for crude oil would be indicated from time to time, were not confirmed by Simpson.

Price fixing is the rock upon which the Standard Oil of New York and California and other units of the industry split.

STRIKES PERIL ROOSEVELT'S NRA DRIVE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—President Roosevelt today faced the necessity of personal intervention as new and serious labor troubles threatened the drive of the National Recovery Administration to bring all industry under the Blue Eagle by September 1.

The President was expected to receive a survey of the labor situation during the day, having already been personally informed of the serious difficulties met in bringing the oil, steel and coal industries under the NRA.

Serious strike threats were renewed in the Western Pennsylvania soft coal field, where President Roosevelt first intervened to bring industrial peace. Several thousand miners had quit work as a result of disputes over keeping the peace pact.

Failure of union leaders and manufacturers to reach an agreement on a new contract in the hosiery industry presented another strike threat. Charges of American Federation of Labor officials that textile mills in the South are violating the cotton textile code were received.

President Roosevelt—determined to go the limit to make the Recovery Administration a success—awaited further developments before deciding upon more drastic pressure than that of public sentiment.

K. OF C. BACK RECOVERY AIMS

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Supreme officers and directors of the Knights of Columbus have pledged support of the National Recovery Administration program. The action was taken at a meeting preliminary to the opening of the fifty-first annual meeting of the supreme council Tuesday.

The resolution, which will be submitted for ratification to the supreme council, affects 500 employes of the order at the New Haven (Conn.) headquarters, and throughout the country.

Martin H. Carmody, supreme knight, said the action puts the moral support and influence of all members of the order firmly behind the recovery campaign.

HOSIERY STRIKE LOOMING

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 14.—(INS.)—A nation-wide strike in the hosiery industry loomed today as a result of a break in negotiations between union leaders and manufacturers for a new contract to succeed the current agreement which expires September 1.

Two weeks' debate over provisions of the new pact resulted in complete disagreement between a committee of the American Federation of Full-Fashioned Hosiery Workers and the executive board of the Full-Fashioned Hosiery Manufacturers' Association of America.

The union's annual convention is being held today and it was expected negotiations for a new contract will be resumed at its close. Settlement of the protracted Reading hosiery strike was considered as having strengthened labor's bargaining position and paved the way for a compromise settlement of the nation-wide strike threat.

NAVY CONTRACT TO SPUR JOBS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The first of the new ship contracts for fighting vessels of the United States Navy will be signed this week, giving work directly to thousands of workers, and indirectly to other thousands, it was announced by the Public Works Administration today.

After signing these contracts, the Navy will be in the market for early deliveries of standard fittings, auxiliary and other materials, giving employment to workers in manufacture of pumps, blowers, motors, fans, airports, watertight doors, electrical fittings and other ship's gear.

Construction of Navy ships in government yards and private ship-building plants will furnish additional employment besides that resulting from several hundred public works projects actually under way.

JOBS LIGHTEN RELIEF LOAD IN COUNTY

Allegheny County's relief problem is improving daily, but it still is the biggest one of its kind ever to confront this community and will not be eradicated for many months to come, in the opinion of George P. Mills, executive director of the Allegheny County Emergency Association. It is on the basis of facts and figures furnished by Mills that the following statements of relief conditions are given:

From a peak of 75,126 families on relief during the week of May 22, representing about 20 per cent of the families within the county, the unemployment relief load has begun to ebb, but the decrease has been slow. In the week of May 22 a total of $280,190.88 was spent for food alone.

During the last week of July, the number of families had dropped to 67,365, a decrease of 7,761—about 10 per cent.

DROP CONTINUES

The average rate of decrease from the peak of May 22 to the last week in July was about 862 families, with the food relief expenditure for the last week at $246,594.18, as compared with more than $280,000 at the top of the unemployment curve.

The drop continues, but the load is still far above anything anticipated by relief leaders.

Re-employment, that became noticeable about the last of May in line with a general pickup in steel, coal and rail business, has effected the decrease in relief demands to date. The National Industrial Recovery Act program has not as yet had any direct effect toward reduction of the load, but is expected to make itself felt about the middle of September.

CODE SEEN SPUR

Although many of the industries in Allegheny County have signed the President's blanket code or have begun to operate under independent trade codes since August 1, and have taken on additional workers, the first wages on these new jobs will not come before the middle of the month. Meantime, the relief agencies must continue to give help. The really appreciable effects of the re-employment move will come about the second week of September.

If the recovery program gains headway an acceleration of decrease in relief demands is anticipated to continue well into October.

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION

Hoboes' Code Protects Family Man's Job

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—While they lost no time in drawing up a code of fair practice, the Hoboes of America as represented at their annual convention find modern conditions none too attractive for their profession.

The big complaint was against present day construction of box cars. "Riding the rods" has become even too hazardous for the veteran 'boes what with the new single rods and the high trucks now in use, they lamented.

But the hoboes still scorn the hitch hiker and do not seek something for nothing.

Jeff Davis, of Cincinnati, "King of the Hoboes;" Ose Routt, New York, and his father, James Routt, of San Francisco, drew up the code for the itinerant workmen as they call themselves. It provides:

Hoboes will not wash dishes or otherwise work in a restaurant for meals—such might take work away from a man with a family.

Pay for cleaning snow off walks shall be 50 cents an hour and the same rate applies to shoveling coal or cleaning windows.

LINK MASSACRE SUSPECT WITH KIDNAPING

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Attorney General Cummings announced today that the arrest of Harvey Bailey on a farm in Texas, Saturday, not only resulted in the apprehension of the leader in the Kansas City depot slayings of June 17, but evidently solved the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel at Oklahoma City, July 22.

Cummings said Bailey, who has been positively identified as the wielder of the machine gun in the killing of Frank Nash, notorious criminal, and four federal and city enforcement officers at Kansas City, had a large sum of marked ransom money on his person when captured and that this money was used by the Urschel family to pay the kidnapers.

Five others were taken in the early morning raid on the Texas farmhouse, including R. G. Shannon, apparently the owner of the house; his wife, Ora Shannon; his son, Arman, and Arman's wife, Oleta, and Earl Brown, father of Oleta Shannon.

CAPTURE OF CONVICT

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Harvey Bailey, escaped Kansas convict who has been sought in connection with the slaying of four officers and Frank Nash, escaped convict, at the Union Station in Kansas City on June 17, was arrested at Decatur, Tex., Saturday Department of Justice agents announced today.

Bailey, an associate of Nash, was arrested on a farm. He was brought to Dallas and placed in jail. Decatur is in Wise County, about 50 miles northwest of Dallas.

The prisoner, also known under the aliases of J. J. Brennan and John Brown, had been sought with Verne C. Miller, former South Dakota Sheriff, and Wilbur Underhill since the Kansas City shooting.

LED JAIL BREAK

He was a leader in the Memorial Day break from the Kansas State Prison at Lansing, in which 11 convicts escaped by kidnaping the warden. He was serving 10 to 50 years for the $32,000 robbery of the Citizens National Bank at Fort Scott, Kan.

Officers intimated Bailey's capture had not been made public immediately because they had remained in ambush at the farm home expecting the arrival of Bailey's associates, possibbly Verne Miller or Wilbur Underhill.

The middle-aged desperado's name was linked with the Kansas City killings in the belief he had joined Nash in depredations in the southwest after Bailey escaped prison. Officers believe Nash may have smuggled the firearms used by Bailey and his followers in the prison break.

SLAYING OF 'PAL'

Nash, who escaped from the Leavenworth Federal Prison in 1930, was captured at Hot Springs, Ark., by F. J. Lackey and Frank Smith, agents of the United States Bureau of Investigation from Oklahoma City, and Otto Reed, chief of police at McAlester, Okla., who was one of those slain in the attempt to free Nash the following day.

Officers theorized that Bailey had a part in the quick relay of information that Nash had been caught and the plans to free him in a burst of machine gun fire, which, however, also killed Nash.

Officers said Bailey was asleep when Department of Justice agents entered his bedroom after capturing two men and two women in the farmhouse.

In his bed was a submachine gun, beneath his pillow a revolver. At the bedside stood an automatic rifle.

Awakened by the officers, Bailey slowly sat up, rubbed his eyes and said:

WHIPPING, EXILE DEMANDED FOR RACKETEERS, KIDNAPERS

U. S. LAUNCHES WARFARE ON GANGSTERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Universal finger-printing, whipping post, exile, tight parole laws and a sort of American Scotland Yard, were urged on a Senate subcommittee today as methods to curb racketeering.

The committee, headed by Senator Royal S. Copeland, held its first regional open hearing in the Bar Association Building with more than 200 interested spectators. Among the first speakers were Senator Copeland himself, Edward P. Mulrooney, former police commissioner of New York; Joseph Keenan, special assistant attorney general, and James Bolan, present police commissioner of New York.

Keenan urged a federal bureau to co-ordinate its efforts; Mulrooney advanced universal finger-printing, "20 lashes with 20 years," and federal control of firearms. The latter also thought parole laws should be tightened and said that exile of racketeers to an island prison "would help."

PUBLIC HELP ASKED

Commissioner Bolan presented a dispassionate discussion of crime statistics, laying emphasis on kidnaping. He said:

"The police are not fearful that they cannot cope with the situation. They only ask the public to assist them."

Bolan said he believed a federal co-ordinating bureau would be valuable in detecting crime, but he warned that too much outside assistance would be resented by local authorities.

Prof. Raymond Moley, recently designated by President Roosevelt to study racketeering, sat with Mulrooney to listen to the proceedings.

Bolan said it was a common thing to find paroled criminals returning to the police line, but he was not in general opposed to the parole system. He said an aroused public opinion wouuld have a salutary psychological effect upon the courts. Copeland asked:

"Then you think an aroused, aggressive public opinion would help a great deal?"

Bolan replied:

"Yes."

He favored regulation of the sale of firearms, but did not believe that the law-abiding citizen should be denied the right to carry a gun.

CENTRAL CRIME BUREAU

Former Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen followed Bolan with several specific recommendations, among them a central crime bureau, and amendment of the Sherman anti-trust laws to curb racketeers.

He urged an amendment of the federal Constitution to give the government concurrent jurisdiction with the states in crime, especially for homicide, felonies and firearms. Copeland told him that a bar association committee was now drafting such an amendment.

Copeland asked:

"Would it be advantageous to incorporate in the NRA codes a provision against the paying of tribute to racketeers."

Whalen replied:

U. S. 'SCOTLAND YARD'

As to Scotland Yard, Whalen said that New York's detective bureau was more efficient. He was, nevertheless, in favor of a national bureau to assist local police.

Robert Darue, chairman of the federal bar association, said Scotland Yard did not have the jurisdiction generally believed, being largely confined to London. Copeland replied:

"Well, the Scotland Yard we are taking about is the Scotland Yard of Edgar Wallace and the fiction writers."

GIRL SHOOTING CASE CLOSED

RISE IN BREAD PRICES PROBED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Dr. Fred C. Howe, consumers' counsel for the farm administration, said today an investigation would be made in cities where the price of bread seemed out of line and where the price spread had increased sharply in the last few months.

Howe made his comment on the basis of a study by the farm administration which showed the price of bread in 16 representative cities had increased 1.4 cents from February 15 to August 2. The study was based on the average cost of a pound loaf of white bread, 16 ounces making a pound.

No specific cities for the investigation were mentioned by Howe.

The report issued by the farm administration showed that the cost of a pound loaf of bread in Cincinnati had risen from 5.3 to 7.8 in the period studied, a spread of 2.5 and that in Memphis the increase had been 2.1.

Dr. Howe said the increased cost of labor in the various cities had not been fully determined and that this might have had an effect in making the price spread higher in some towns.

Eight Panhandlers Sent to Workhouse

Frank R. Boyd, inspector of city detectives, said:

"Callan had an unusual memory for faces. There were few uniformed men around the country who knew as many safecrackers and professional pickpockets, and he was a valuable man at running down these two classes of criminals."

JOHNSON QUITS HOTEL IN HUFF

International News Service.

DAYTON, O., Aug. 14.—(INS.)—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, ruler of business codes in the National Recovery Administration, ran afoul of some rules in the hotel business last night that he didn't make.

Forced to spend the night in Dayton because of poor flying conditions eastward, Gen. Johnson sought a hotel. Although the general introduced himself, the clerk said he would have to have identification. A newspaper reporter readily assured the clerk that Gen. Johnson was no one else but Gen. Johnson.

Then, the clerk—a sticker for the rules of the business—noticed that the general had no luggage and told him he would have to pay in advance.

The general, who was plenty tired after a flight from St. Louis, where he made an address last night, had more than he could stand by this time.

He blared:

"To hell with this place."

Then, turning on his heel, he walked out of the hotel.

At the next hotel, the general was welcomed "on credit," and he retired, calling for a toothbrush as he went to his room.

Gen. Johnson left Dayton by airplane this morning for Washington.

SHIP AGROUND, PRIESTS SAVED

CARIBOU ISLAND, Quebec, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—The small coastwist passenger steamer North Shore was pounding itself to pieces on a reef near here last night while a party of Roman Catholic dignitaries headed by Monsignor Andrea Cassulo, papal delegate to Canada and Newfoundland, were safe at Rimouski, Quebec, after a thrilling rescue from the damaged vessel by boats manned by fishermen and the ship's crew.

The North Shore, owned by the Clarke Steamship Company, struck a reef at 5 p. m. Saturday. The exact cause of the accident was not determined.

Under orders of Capt. Joseph H. Ovington and the personal supervision of Col. Frank Stanton, secretary-treasurer of the Clarke company, the passengers were removed in boats manned by the crew and by fishermen living nearby.

They spent the night in the homes of residents at Pointe Des Monts, 15 miles from this island, and yesterday boarded the steamer Marco Polo and proceeded to Matane, Quebec, and thence by train to Rimouski.

BALBO'S FLIERS TURN TO WORK, FAMILIES

ROME, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Air Marshall Italo Balbo's trans-Atlantic aviators thought of home and work today.

They told their families of adventures over the Atlantic, in North America, at the World's Fair in Chicago, and in New York and other places.

They told of the triumphs and the awards they received from an admiring government and an enthusiastic populace. And today they were ready for work again.

The pilots and mechanics of the giant seaplanes set out six weeks ago on a mass flight that Premier Mussolini yesterday told them was a "consecrated Fascist revolution in the skies of two continents."

MEDALS, PROMOTIONS

"Many years will pass before the air corps of other countries" equal the feat which was concluded Saturday with the arrival in Ostia, Il Duce said, as he conferred the title of air marshal on Gen. Balbo and kissed the commander on both cheeks. Each flier was given a medal of honor and a promotion.

Relatives of Sergt. Quintavalle, killed at Amsterdam on the outward voyage, and Lieut. Squaglia, who died in the Azores on the homeward trip, were given gold medals, the country's highest award for bravery.

GREETED BY KING

King Victor Emmanuel and high Fascist officials received and reviewed the airmen today as they returned to their home base at Orbetello in the midst of the unanimous acclaim of villagers.

Mgr. Carlo Ferrari, who blessed the planes and the men prior to their departure for Chicago, July 1, welcomed "my boys" with embraces and tears. Bishop Paolo Galeazzi, of Grosseto, held a "te deum" at the cathedral, and the town authorities declared a holiday.

ANGMAGSALIK, Greenland, Aug. 14.—(INS.)—Waiting only for favorable weather, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were poised today for their hop to Reykjavik, Iceland, most dangerous of their entire survey expedition in North Atlantic regions.

The Colonel hoped he would be able to leave within 18 hours, but reports from Iceland were unsatisfactory.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(INS.)—Weather conditions will delay the proposed trans-Atlantic flight of Gen. Francisco de Pinedo for at least 48 hours, he said today. The General hopes to better the non-stop distance record made recently by Rossi and Godos, French pilots.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(INS.)—Mrs. Amy Johnson Mollison, English flyer, en route to Atlanta on a transport plane, will fly to Washington tomorrow, returning here Thursday, it was announced today.

2 GUNMEN HELD AFTER KILLINGS

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Thomas Lacoco, 38, was arrested last night on suspicion of being the fourth member of a quartet of gunmen which engaged Sheriff Thomas B. Bash in a fatal fight here Saturday after shooting down a gangster rival.

Two of the gunmen were slain by the Sheriff. He and a deputy captured another, Charles Gargotta. Sheriff Bash said Lacoco was seen with Gargotta Friday night near the International Arena, athletic show place.

Ferris J. Anthon, killed on the sidewalk near his apartment by the four gunmen from a motor car, was part owner of the arena buffet.

Officers expressed the belief Gargotta and Lacoco watched the buffet to follow Anthon when he departed.

SEIBEL SCORES HITLERISM IN FAIR SPEECH

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—Voicing veiled thrusts at Hitlerism and a plea to the German people to embrace the ideals of peace and liberty taught by their poets and thinkers, George Seibel, of Pittsburgh, yesterday delivered the official address at the German Day observance of the World's Fair.

Seibel, president of the American Turnerbund and literary and dramatic critic of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, spoke in German over a coast-to-coast radio network, his speech being transmitted by short wave to Germany.

He said in part:

"By two great inventions Germany has freed mankind from fetters. Through the invention of gunpowder by Berthold Schwarz the feudal castles of the robber barons became untenable. Through the printing press invented by Johann Gutenberg the feudal castles of the mind became untenable. Mankind won freedom.

"But man is a gregarious animal and never feels quite comfortable in freedom. If he has no rulers by the grace of God, he finds himself some by the wrath of God. He delights in the crack of the whip and takes pleasure in being shorn. He has permitted Praetorian guards and censors to steal away his gunpowder and his printing press. In many countries even reason and brotherly love have become obsolete — Messianic harlequins today dominate the impotent and deluded world.

"We are united with Germany through similar destiny and similar ideals. When during the year 1925—it was the 18th of March—I spoke for the first time over the short wave from America to Germany, I uttered these words—to the land of my forefathers, which I had never seen:

"'You have given the world many gifts. Through Kant the vision of eternal peace, through Lessing the reverence for truth, through Schiller the love of liberty, through Goethe the beautiful ideal of enthroned humanity. We are deeply in your debt, and we would repay this debt—and therefore I call to you: Never forget yourselves those lessons which your great thinkers and poets have taught the world.'

"Alas, the entire world has forgotten those lessons—sinister forces everywhere are forging chains—the highest duty of man today is to pay taxes and shout hurrah.

"But despotic power always digs its own grave—hatred dies of its own poison, and after every night comes a golden morning, after every winter a smiling spring.

"The call of the lark and the blush of the dawn are in the air—a new era is dawning in every land—and with joy we greet this vernal tide that will sweep away all narrow-minded malice, all hatred and all envy, all the dark madness of the middle ages, and glorify the dreams of humanity. Let the German spirit again awake! Make way for liberty! Throw down your weapons of war! Raise aloft the banner of German idealism!"

TELL IT TO ELSIE

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Do Men Believe That Divorce Makes a Woman Cheap?

Do men respect grass widows and give them a break?

Or do they believe that, because a woman is divorced, she's a tramp and treat her accordingly?

Cynthia says they don't to the first, and they do, to the second—and she's plenty peeved about it.

"You would think," she snorts, "that they are convinced I divorced my sense of decency, as well as my husband!"

Is that what you think, Big Boy, when you meet a Renovated Lady? If so—why? And whose fault is it? Hers? Or yours?

Dear Elsie:

I would like to ask you—Aren't there any decent men left? And why does the average man seem to think that if you're divorced, he can take liberties with you?

DIVORCED HUSBAND

Before I was married, I had a little apartment and a good job—my folks don't live here—and I was very popular. I had lots of men friends, and they treated me with respect. I used to have them up to my apartment for dinner. I went out with them. There were several of them that I could have married. They never, any of them, acted as they shouldn't, beyond trying to pet a little.

Well, I met a new man and married him, and found he was absolutely no good. He was lazy and a chaser. He was sarcastic and mean, and the whole thing was a nightmare. Rather than live out my life that way, I went to Reno and divorced him. It was easy. I had plenty of grounds, and no one had ever had a chance to say even a whisper of scandal about me. I took care that I didn't let myself in for anything of that kind. I have decent ideals, and I expect to keep them.

I'm back home now. I've been fortunate enough to get a fairly decent job. Again I have a little apartment. Again I seem to be popular. But with what a difference! Most of the men I knew five years ago when I was single, are married now themselves. Some of them are not, and have taken me out—but they act differently.

Whether they're the ones I knew a little back in the old days, or new ones, they seem to think that, because I'm divorced, I'm willing to be cheap and common. "Sophisticated" they call it. As if being really sophisticated didn't mean having learned to live more finely and gracefully!

Judging from the way they act, they seem to think it means having learned to live loosely.

Several times men have asked me out to dinner and a show, and then taken it for granted that they were to come up to my apartment afterward. "For a bite to eat," is their story. I fell for it a time or two—and had a rotten argument and a very angry would-be gallant run out of the place.

They used to come up in the old days and act decent. Now they say, "But listen, girlie, you're not a child," etc. I'm getting fed up.

GIRL PUZZLED

I just don't understand it. I didn't divorce my sense of decency along with my worthless husband. I would like to live pleasantly and sanely. I like men. But I am so sick of their actions that I could just kill them.

What on earth is the matter with them? Do they treat all divorcees that way? I've heard complaints like mine from other women. It makes me wonder.

CYNTHIA.

There's the story, boys.

What's your answer?

Do you think that divorce makes Jill a Tough Baby? And do you treat her like one?

If so—why so?

And when you do, do you figure you're giving her a square deal?

Come on! Let's have your side—if you have one!

Fay King Discusses Secret Ambitions and What They Bring

By FAY KING

Everyone has some secret ambition and aspiration.

Few, if any, ever reach it. Even those who seem to attain their goal find some hitch, some difference from exactly what they had hoped for.

So that those who do succeed, and those who do not, share much the same disappointment.

But in secretly striving for some worthy goal one is bound to have an improving influence.

For instance, a bookkeeper who likes to imagine himself as a great explorer, will find office difficulties trivial and easy to adjust compared with his imagined hardships, and the girl who secretly dreams of herself in the role of a great star is bound to cultivate the charm and graciousness a star should have.

To aspire is to improve.

Edith Insists on Telling of Dicky's "Escapade"

Edith Fairfax had been leaning forward in her chair, her eyes fairly burning into mine, as she made her scathing attack upon my apparent indifference to the news she was bringing me about Dicky and the mysterious girl named "Floss." But when I said quietly, "Suppose you tell me about it," she slumped back against the chair back, and seemed to shrink into herself. I think that my quiet theory was something like a pin prick in the balloon of her excitement, and that for a moment she saw herself as others saw her.

I think I was equally aghast at myself. In order to calm her I had said, "Suppose you tell me about it," when in reality I meant anything but that. I never have talked of Dicky's affairs and mine to anyone outside our own family circle, which always, of course, included the Underwoods, and I have been reticent even with them regarding many things. But to talk of a person like "Floss" in connection with my husband, above all to speak of her to a woman who, I knew, was in love with him—I suddenly knew to be impossible.

STOPPED BY MADGE

"I suppose you think I'm crazy," she said dully, "and I suppose I am. But I cannot sit by and see Dicky make a complete fool of himself over that—that—"

"Stop!" I said sternly, and as she looked up, startled, I rushed on.

"I am the one who is crazy," I said. "I must have been perfectly mad when I asked you to tell me about this just now. I can listen to nothing against Dicky from you or anyone else. Please forget that I asked you to tell me about it. This is all distinctly none of my business, Edith."

"Madge!" She sprang to her feet.

"Would that please you, Edith?" I asked icily.

She looked at me steadily.

"Why pretend, you and I?" she asked, with a bitter sneer twisting her lips. "We have hated each other for years. If we were less civilized, we'd be at each other's throats, or sending each other poisoned candy. Of course, I'd be glad if I knew you and Dicky were at the end of things. Not that it would do me any good in the present state of things," she added despondently. Then she shot the question at me again:

"Are you and Dicky at the end?" she asked.

SORRY FOR DISAPPOINTMENT

"I'm sorry to disappoint you," I said, for it was not in human feminine nature to keep venom from my voice and words, and I knew that apparently calm courtesy would infuriate her most. "But my husband and I are on the most amicable terms possible. Really I am very much ashamed of myself for listening to even so small a thing against him. Whatever grievance you have against this young woman 'Floss,' you must take up with her. I can have nothing to do with it—do not wish to know anything about it."

"So that's your game, is it?" she said, pausing by my couch and glancing down at me. "You'll be complacent toward this common creature, Floss, because in your high and mightiness you don't fear her. You're sure Dicky will be too fastidious to look at her, and you also figure that I, whom you always have feared—and with reason, old dear; never forget that—will antagonize Dicky beyond recall by showing my jealousy of this unspeakable girl.

"Well! I'm not going to let you get away with that pose, as far as I'm concerned. You can't get away from that couch, and I'm going to tell you all I know about this girl and Dicky. For you can't fool me. You never could love Dicky as I do. It isn't in you. You're prouder than Lucifer, but you're certainly not going to be proud of your handsome husband when I tell you of some of the tricks he has recently pulled."

The house telephone rang, and as if the sound had taken her by the throat she stopped and stared at it.

"Will you please answer it?" I asked quietly. "I can't move from the couch."

She waited an instant, evidently wavering; then convention pulled too hard for her and she went to the telephone.

"Yes," she said. Then, her face dark, she turned to me.

"Mrs. Underwood says Mr. Veritzen is downstairs, and she wants to know when you will be able to see him?"

I looked at her steadily—

"Will you please say to her," I directed, "that I am ready to see him now."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

If blood streams are to purr, cheeks flaunt home-grown roses, the lungs must have deep drafts of fresh air that wash out the lower lobes. Shallow breathers are likely to have gray skins, dull eyes, lagging steps. Before going to sleep and upon awakening give the lungs a fine rousing air bath, inhaling through the nostrils, expanding the chest cavity, exhaling through the lips. A long walk every day should be on the calendar of Pretty One's activities. Walking is the ideal exercise; it warms the flesh, stimulates the avenues of elimination, does wonders for the complexion that has gone stale.

Don't put your precious bottle of perfume in a place that is warm, nor should you let it stand with the stopper out. The alcoholic base will evaporate and there will be waste. Furs and woolen fabrics hold scent longer than cotton or silk. If the beauty budget is meager, use a delicate scented talcum after the bath. Inexpensive and satisfactory.

Note of Acceptance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please advise me how to write a note of regret, also one of acceptance to a bridge party? S.

If the invitation is in the form of a note, your acceptance would read something like this:

Dear Mrs. Williams:

I am very happy to accept your kind invitation to your home to play bridge on Friday afternoon, September the tenth, at three o'clock. Thank you so much for asking me.

Very sincerely yours,
Mary Alexander Black.

Dear Mrs. Williams:

Thank you so much for your very kind invitation to play bridge at your home on Friday, the tenth of September. I am so sorry that a previous engagement makes it impossible for me to have the pleasure of being with you and your friends, but I do want you to know how very much I appreciated your asking me.

Very sincerely yours,
Mary Alexander Black.

Addressing Birth Announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I would like to know the proper way to send out birth announcements. As most of our friends are married, should they be addressed to Mr. and Mrs. or just Mrs. J. Smith?

2—Would it be all right for my husband to send some to a few of his lodge men who are single and whom we don't know very well?

3—Some of these men are married. How should they be addressed? P.

2—Yes, if you wish to.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

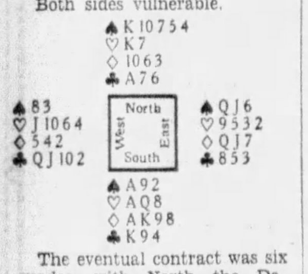
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Undestimating an Adversary

One of the favorite pastimes of many recognized expert players is presenting such conundrums to others as "How would you play this hand provided so-and-so was the defending player?"—the assumption, of course, being that a master player varies his play according to the skill or lack of it possessed by the opponent of the moment.

In a recent championship event, one of New York's master players had reached the contract of six spades against a young lady who had been playing Bridge for only a few months and whose tutelage in the game had been confined to instruction by her very brilliant husband. The assumption, of course, was that she would be guilty of the faults of the amateur, and upon this the expert based his play, only to find out too late that he had made that very serious blunder—underestimating an adversary. The hand was:

North, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The eventual contract was six spades, with North the Declarer, neither East nor West entering the bidding.

The Opening lead was a heart, and the hand appeared reasonably easy, provided there was a split in trumps and no occasion to lose a trick in diamonds. North could discard one diamond from his own hand on the third heart in Dummy, and if he could establish one low-card diamond trick in three leads, the place to put the losing club would be found.

Proceeding on this line of play, the expert led two rounds of trumps, conceding the second one to his opponents. A heart was returned and the last trump drawn. At this point the Declarer from his own hand, led the diamond Ten. This was a gesture pure and simple, as there was no special idea of taking the double finesse unless the inexperienced East player helped a little. East, however, without the slightest hesitation and apparently as though she had no problem whatever to solve, played the small diamond. The trick was won with the King in Dummy, the remaining heart laid down and a diamond discard taken in the closed hand, followed by the lead of the Ace of diamonds. West played a small card, North followed suit, and East now played the diamond Queen. This gave the situation a different aspect, and the Declarer now decided that East was not a good enough player to have played the diamond suit so skillfully if she held Q J X of diamonds. He led another diamond, and, when West played low, decided it was a deep-laid plot and discarded a club. East won the trick with the Knave, thereby defeating the contract.

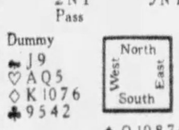
East's failure to cover the diamond Ten was, of course, very fine. The Declarer had formed a good plan of play, and East, much to his surprise, discovered the way to frustrate it. It all just goes to show that it is hard to tell just how to play a doubtful hand, regardless of what your opinion of your opponents may be.

Today's Question

Neither side vulnerable.
The bidding:

West	East
Pass	1 N T
2 N T	3 N T
Pass

Dummy



You, South, have opened the spade 7, Dummy playing the nine-spot, North playing the King and Declarer playing the two. North now returns the five-spot, Declarer plays the four, and you win the trick with the Queen. What card do you now lead?

Answer: The heart Ten. From the play of the first two tricks it is quite obvious that East holds the spade Ace and is holding off. South knows that he has drained the trick-taking possibilities of this suit so far as his hand is concerned; that even though he now proceeds to knock out Declarer's Ace, it is certain that he will never get in again. Since North must have whatever card of re-entry the partnership has left, it is best to start trying to set up North's tricks. The heart shift is safe and is pretty certain not to lose a trick. In addtion, having led the suit at this trick may help prevent partner from being caught in a possible end-play.

The Human Side of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

THE passing of Ex-Gov. Charles N. Haskell, of Oklahoma, removes from the human theater one of those salty personalities, so familiar to the development of western states men who drank deeply of life. It was Haskell who helped build the constitution of the old Indian Territory, who made millions in oil and who ended his days playing solitaire—beaten finally, by a changing world

But there is still left that other downright soul. William Henry Murray, present Govenor of the state, and Haskell's companion and frequent opponent in the blazing years when Oklahoma was emerging from primitive conditions and the days of the "boomers" into its present rank among the commonwealths.

Always a hard fighter, Alfalfa Bill Murray has lost his bout with Repeal and accepts, however reluctantly, the new day of beer.

It was not long ago that Bill Murray had a dispute with the United States Bureau of Fisheries which added considerably to the gayety of the nation. Seeing a hard winter ahead for Oklahoma, he announced a plan to use part of the money borrowed from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to build lakes and stock them with enough fish to provide a pound daily for every man, woman and child in the state.

Commissioner O'Malley, of the Fisheries Bureau, pointed out that the population of Oklahoma is 2,396,000, and that all the fish caught in the United States would barely go around, barring miracles, of course. And O'Malley suggested to Alfalfa Bill, with what seemed a touch of sarcasm, that Gov. Murray might possibly raise enough goldfish, but that goldfish were not edible. Whereupon the fiery Murray replied that he had catfish in mind.

* * *

Alfalfa Bill's Snappy Comeback

"CATFISH," said Alfalfa Bill, "produce he-men who wear britches, while goldfish produce silk stocking experts in Washington."

Which comes under the head of snappy comebacks.

One of the most diverting characters in public life, Alfalfa Bill was born to bitter poverty down in Texas, clawed and scratched his way to become teacher, lawyer and editor. Then he went off to Bolivia to organize a colony. Coming back broke, but by no means bent, he hopped into the race for Governor in 1929. He had no car, so he hitch-hiked his way through the state, subsisting largely on cheese and crackers as he preached to the farmers, ranchers and oil men, and drew big crowds.

He won through sheer personality, and his opponent, an ex-governor and a highly-respected church-going millionaire, never even got near the dust of Bill Murray's flying coattails. So Alfalfa Bill became a national character and a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. His slogan was "Bread and butter, beans and bacon." He damned Wall street, the bankers, the politicians and Congress. He stood on his head upon the lawn of the executive mansion just to prove that a governor could change ends.

When Oklahoma's 22 votes hopped to Roosevelt in Chicago, Alfalfa Bill grumbled that he didn't think Roosevelt was the best man, but that he hoped for the best.

Looking over the state budget he struck out an item for a swimming pool in the state university.

"Let them college boys go swim in the crick," said Governor Alfalfa Bill.

He carries his lunch to the Capitol in a paper bag. He drinks strong coffee by the potfull. He chews incessant cigars into shaving brushes. One of his rules for visitors is:

"Don't deceive me. I suspect your motives already."

The Henry Ford Of France

FOREMOST among intelligent Frenchmen who must be shocked by France's virtual repudiation of the war and peace debts she owes Uncle Sam is the gentleman whose name blazes out against the Paris night from high up on the Eiffel Tower. He is the Henry Ford of France, and his name is Andre Citroen. He knows the United States as America is known by few Frenchmen, and he himself has climbed to success with ideas sheerly American in their audacity. Henry Ford, by the way, is Andre Citroen's hero. The one picture on the desk of his office is a picture of Mr Ford shaking hands with M. Citroen.

About the automobile king of France there's even an American look. He has keen, blue eyes squinting behind gold-rimmed eye glasses. His face is full and alert, a quick smile under his reddish-brown mustache. He's a hustler, always on the trail of new ideas, with a mind that revolves like a dynamo. He has ideas and startling ones to bring back good times.

Born 55 years ago, of a Dutch father and a Parisian mother, M. Citroen, with a good technical education, started out to convert the French to the American mass-production gospel. He started out to teach them that the automobile was not a luxury but a necessity. They were cold to his ideas until the war came along, and it was the aftermath of the war that gave the brisk little man his chance.

When the American Army said goodbye to Mademoiselle from Armentieres, it left 100,000 motor cars in France. They had to be sold. Frenchmen who had never dreamed of being able to own a motor car bought American Army cars for a song.

Here was where Citroen looked ahead. He knew those American cars couldn't last long. In a year or two they would be junk, even in the hands of careful Frenchmen. So he went ahead and built his little Citroen cars to be all ready, when the time came, to meet the taste and fill the demand created by the American cars. Due to him, there are 1,600,000 automobiles in France today, some 600,000 of which he has made. His great advertising feat was getting his name up in big, red electric letters on the great tower which lifts 1,000 feet above the Seine, and is a national monument. Imagine Henry Ford or Walter Chrysler getting the United States government to let them advertise their names and wares from the top of the Washington Monument!

But Citroen got away with something almost as amazing. At a rental cost of only $10,000 a year, his name blazes nightly, in 250,000 electric bulbs, probably the cheapest advertising space in the world.

And that isn't all, for it is M. Citroen who pays for the floodlights hidden in the trees along the Champs Elysee, the lovely light which bathes with radiance the great arch of Napoleon and casts its glory over the magnificent Place de la Concorde. And it is Citroen, Ford of France, who likewise glorifies the exterior of the grand old Church of the Madeleine. He owns 7,000 taxicabs.

Chinese Smash Red Drive, Capture Town

AMOY, Fukien Province (Southeast China), Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Gen. Tsai Ting-Kai's famous 19th Route Army crushed a Red army in Western Fukien Province today and recaptured Lungyen. The Communists scattered towards the Kiangsi border, their drive towards Amoy apparently broken up.

Jean Deserts Ballew for Lopez

Shave, Sir?

"I know, but," (and he was telling the whole truth), "I always need a shave."

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

It's great to know you have staunch supporters. After a statement that didn't meet with the approval of the Wenger youngsters, one said:

"Aw he's cuckoo."

"Cuckoo nothing. He's still sleeping."

Thanks pal.

Coin collecting is a funny thing. There is no real established value to the rare coins. The worth of the coin depends on how badly some collector wants it.

There are concerns whose business it is to contact collectors for the purpose of exchanging, buying or selling coins. I'd get in touch with one of those firms, Mrs. Craig.

"It's a softer job now! Mrs. Walter D. Brown, Perrysville, visiting down here, decided that a pillow could be used advantageously while broadcasting.

3 MEN SEIZED BY MOB SLAIN

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Aug. 14.—(AP.)—One of three Negroes spirited away by a lynching party was still missing today after the bodies of his two companions were found riddled by bullets.

The three, Dan Pippen, Jr., 18; Elmore Clark, 28, and A. T. Harden, 16, had been indicted for killing Miss Vaudine Maddox, 21-year-old white girl.

Police said rumors of a threatened attack on the jail here led them to decide to remove the prisoners to Birmingham. Sheriff R. L. Shamblin said the party was halted yesterday near the Jefferson County line by two automobile loads of armed men, who seized the Negroes.

Later the bodies of Pippen and Harden were found near Blocton.

Bitter criticism came from the International Labor Defense, lawyers of which had sought to represent Pippen but were ruled out. Sheriff Shamblin charged feeling aroused by "the interference of the International Labor Defense lawyers is directly responsible for this violence."

FARLEY TO AID PHILATELISTS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Postmaster General Farley yesterday pledged the co-operation of the Postoffice Department to the nation's stamp collectors.

Noting that President Roosevelt is a philatelist, Farley said the "practical values of an intelligent interest in stamps appear to be obvious." He added:

"They have an educational significance impossible to overestimate. They are effective aids to a larger comprehension of the history of the world, and are conducive to generous Democratic ideals."

His pledge was extended in greetings to the forthcoming conventions of the American Society of Philatelic Americans at Fond Du Lac, Wis., and the American Philatelic Society, Chicago.

IRISH FASCISTS SEEK RECRUITS

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Officers of the blue shirt National Guard, which was prevented by a government order from holding a demonstration yesterday, began recruiting operations today on a large scale.

Gen. Owen O'Duffy, who is directing the campaign, sent officers to all the principal centers. At the Dublin headquarters it was said the organization had every hope of doubling its 40,000 membership within a week, thus making it possible to present a big front in the church parades scheduled for next Sunday in every district of the Free State.

A crowd attacked a group of blue shirts as they left their headquarters in uniform yesterday. Six were hurt. Last night another crowd scuffled with National Guardsmen as they were leaving their headquarters.

NATHAN A. KAUFMAN INSTRUCTING BOY SCOUTS HOW TO BE SAFE MANIPULATING A CANOE

SCOUTS PADDLE OWN CANOE

Boy Scouts are learning to take care of themselves this summer, both in and on the water.

Thanks to a special course in boating and life saving, the scouts are learning how to paddle their own canoes on Panther Hollow Lake, Schenley Park, every Saturday morning. Nathan A. Kaufman, Irene Kaufmann Settlement swimming director, is the teacher.

The boys are becoming skillful with the oars, too, and are learning to make rescues from a boat.

Before taking any boating course, the boys, Kaufman says, must be swimmers good enough to win junior lifeguard certificates. Although Panther Hollow Lake is only 3 feet deep, "Nat" points out that it might be dangerous for a poor swimmer to try to do tricks with a boat or canoe in deeper water.

Any scout is eligible to take the lessons free, and 30 patrols are already represented.

Titusville Teacher Pay Cuts Restored

TITUSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 14.—(INS.)—Voluntary 10 per cent cuts effected last year have been restored to all local teachers, the Titusville Board of Education announced today.

Receipt of tax money is at a rate warranting return of the cuts in addition to assuring funds for all needs for the year, it was announced.

BLONDE BEAUTY SLAIN ON ROOF

International News Service.

PASADENA, Cal., Aug. 14.—Mystery today surrounded the penthouse death of Helen Bendowski, blonde 28-year-old Pasadena beauty.

Two men, Patrolman M. E. Miedema, and Harold D. Wolcott, Pasadena florist and her asserted sweetheart, admitted they were in the building when Miss Bendowski died.

The woman, owner of a smart beauty shop salon, was found shot to death on the roof of the apartment house. Miedema and Wolcott declared she had committed suicide, but detectives pointed out the short fur jacket Miss Bendowski wore had no powder marks, and that other occupants of the house had heard three shots.

Wolcott was arrested on suspicion of murder and Miedema was ordered held as a material witness.

A mystery woman, Zelda Smith, was questioned by officers and said she and Miedema were chatting in an apartment at 3 a. m. when she heard Wolcott's voice raised in anger, above.

Then, Miss Smith said, they heard the fatal shots fired.

Gold Pieces, Jewelry Gone, Domestic Held

The alleged disappearance of several $5 gold pieces and jewelry from the home of Mrs. Rose Hagedorm, at 5825 Elgin avenue, resulted in the arrest of Florence Dowig, 34, a domestic. She was held for further investigation by Magistrate John J. Sweeney yesterday in Morals Court.

Bogus Bill Passed At Gasoline Stand

Two boys and two girls were sought by police today after they are alleged to have passed a counterfeit $1 bill for gas and oil purchased at the Ackerman garage, Hazelwood avenue and Beechwood boulevard.

POPEYE PARTY AT KENNYWOOD

Popeye's birthday party is going to be the big event of the summer for the boys and girls of Pittsburgh. Popeye's party will take place at Kennywood Park, Friday, August 25, and all the boys and girls are invited to go out and meet this blustering big-fisted man of the Sun-Telegraph comics. Popeye is going to be there—in person—and he's going to see that all his little friends will have a good time. Yes, a big birthday cake an' everything.

Now, boys and girls, if you can spell P-O-P-E-Y-E with Sun-Telegraph coupons you can get a strip of eight tickets for the Kennywood rides at Popeye's birthday party.

Here's how you have to do it. Beginning tomorrow and continuing every day for six days, not including Sunday, there will be a special coupon in the Sun-Telegraph. The first coupon will have a big "P" printed in it; the second coupon will have an "O," the third another "P" and continuing daily until the name P-O-P-E-Y-E is spelled out by using the coupons.

Then take your six coupons to one of the exchange stations in your neighborhood, a list of which will appear later in the Sun-Telegraph, and get your strip of free tickets.

Easy, isn't it. And after you have spelled P-O-P-E-Y-E with coupons clipped from the Sun-Telegraph you are all set to go to the big birthday party that Popeye is giving.

Remember, the first coupon will appear in the Sun-Telegraph tomorrow. Don't miss it.

LAMSON WAITS DEATH TRIAL

SAN JOSE, Cal., Aug. 14.—(INS.)—Visions of innocent men hanged or placed in prison for life today disturbed David A. Lamson, charged with the Stanford campus "bathtub murder" of his pretty wife, Allene.

Slated to go to trial here next Monday in Superior Court, Lamson reviewed the state's case in his cell in the old Santa Clara County Jail while his attorney, E. A. Rea, pointed out "how easy it is for justice to miscarry."

Lamson, according to Rea, continues to assert his innocence.

The authorities meanwhile continued to search for John P. Emmerson, who wrote a letter claiming that he heard a "big Negro itinerant" confess to Mrs. Lamson's slaying.

'Ironsides' Viewed By Descendant Of Commander

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 14.—(AP.)—For most of her 82 years Mrs. Alice Hull Welch, of Medford, Ore., had hoped one day she might visit the old frigate that, under the command of her great-grandfather, made early American naval history.

Today the hope had been realized. Mrs. Welch was a guest of honor aboard the Constitution. Commander Louis J. Gulliver escorted her about and showed her his private cabin, the very quarters from which her great-grandfather, Commodore Isaac Hull, directed the maneuvers of "Old Ironsides" when it defeated the British frigate Guerriere in the War of 1812.

Bandits Get $60 At Gasoline Station

Forcing the lone attendant, John M. Scott, of 409 South Winebiddle avenue, into a rear room, two Negro bandits early today looted the cash register of the Standard Oil Company service station at Putnam and Hamilton avenues of $60 and escaped.

FORM E. E. CLUB FOR MACKRELL

A Progressive Republican Club, to support Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell for the mayoralty nomination, has been formed in the Eighth Ward. E. E. McConnell, former East End organizer for the Citizens League, which is supporting Councilman P. J. McArdle against Mackrell, organized the new club.

McConnell said he would have supported the candidacy of William P. Witherow, but declined to back McArdle when Witherow withdrew his name and the league transferred its support to McArdle.

Mrs. Jessie Stewart, vice chairman of the Citizens League in the Eighth Ward, attended the meeting at which the new club was organized and announced she would not follow the league into the McArdle camp.

A meeting will be held later this week to elect officers.

Donald D. Mangone, governor general of the Roosevelt Civic Legion, is a candidate for jury commissioner on both the Republican and Democratic tickets. He says politics should be abolished from the commission.

TEACHER DROPS NUDIST CLUB

LANCASTER, Pa., Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Alfred Bennecht's newspaper advertisement for members of a "health club" got more attention than he expected, and now he announces that "all projects of social nudity" at his West Cocalico Township farm have been abandoned.

A formal statement by the 50-year-old school teacher says he does not wish to anger his neighbors or "cause the school board to be alarmed." The township school directors' "alarm" had been expressed in an appeal to the county superintendent for action.

Nudism or not, Bennecht says he still believes his health club would have benefited members physically and mentally.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

One Man's Opinion of Hollywood
Jim Tully

Perhaps the only dynamite in Hollywood is Jim Tully, who fathered "Jarnegan," "A California Holiday" and other worthy wordage. Tully's bark is just as tough as his bite—and when the delivers himself of an opinion or so on this and that citizen—these ears are his. You probably will agree with some of his verdicts. Perhaps you won't. At any rate, he confesses that he is the "most hated man in Hollywood"—to which his targets certainly will testify with a nod. He adds, however, that hate is akin to love—until you get gyped in a honky-tonk. I urged him to tell me some of his pet likes and dislikes—and I came away with these notes.

To Tully, Hollywood has always been the last carnival—full of gay girls who know more about makeup than George Jean Nathan does about Ibsen . . . After years in a furnished room in Hollywood Tully says he learned that one could become famous by simply having courage—and ability. Hollywood, he argues lustily, has never produced a first class film. "Maedchen In Uniform," he reminds you, was made abroad.

"Old Johnson," Tully continued, "long ago said that Goldsmith touched nothing he did not adorn. Hollywood writers are hacks in a long and tinsel parade—the paint is beginning to peel on them . . ."

Laurence Stallings, in the old World years ago, testified to the same argument—that nothing good in writing had come out of Hollywood. Stallings, however, long since discovered some of the California gold, and now is wealthy and benign . . . Tully told me that he considered my comments recently about Darryl Zanuck an insult to his intelligence . . . He doesn't agree with me, at all . . . Zanuck, he says, glorifies old fashioned melodrama—and Tully fears that by the time Zanuck produces a certain Broadway story—there will be an angel in the room defending her honor with a six-shooter. This doesn't distress me—I mean what Zanuck does—For as Shaw once flipped: "You talk about art, while I want to talk about money."

Tully doesn't think George Arliss is hot, either . . . Who can think or feel, he says, will ever forget Arliss—"that ghost in the graveyard of acting" as the Man who played God—even on the stage . . . Arliss, it appears, was a synthetic Shylock, with perhaps a Hollywood contract in his pocket.

When Hollywood doesn't know what else to say about an actor, it calls him subtle . . . Once at Jim Cruze's house Tully told Lenore Ulrich that she was the best of the second-rate actresses in America—and before she could thank him for his left-handed compliment, he added: "And there are no first!" . . . "There is potentially one now in the cinema city," he related—"if Frank Fay will take a tumble and let her alone!" . . . Tully meant Barbara Stanwyck, in case you are confused trying to keep up with the local man and woman combinations, legal or otherwise.

Barbara Stanwyck won't appreciate Tully's sugary comment, at all. She isn't interested in anyone who hammers her groom. Nevertheless Tully considers her a splendid actress in whom the floods of emotion are being dammed at their source by not enough understanding—only the diffused portions of life are subtle . . . Stanwyck is the only woman in Hollywood who could make Tess Durbyfield tremble on the gallows, and clothe her with the pity with which she was draped by the magnificent Hardy when he wrote—and the President of the Immortals had ended his sport with Tess . . . Hollywood, I was informed, once sent a man to England—to talk with Hardy—to find out what Hardy was like . . . "Just a sap" was his report.

Tully thinks Warner Oland is the most civilized actor in Hollywood—as a man . . . Oland began with Ibsen and Strindberg and became famous as Charlie Chan . . . Tully considers Norma Shearer the most gracious girl in the film province . . . Clyde Fitch, he avers, would have loved her—but in spite of that—she is capable of development . . . Tully amazes you a little by asserting that he has never been irritated by Will Hays, the movie czar . . . His job, Jim adds, has always been as difficult as keeping peace at an Irish wake . . . One of the better similes, Mr. Wilstach, make a note of it.

For the sentimental man—and Tully certainly is one, Hollywood is often a sad place—like the rest of the world—it is full of sparrows that would be eagles—and mice who walk like tigers! While this arouses his sense of irony, it also flutters his pity. And the two are closer than four producers trying to reduce a ham's salary.

He is no longer interested in virtue—having seen too many D. W. Griffith pictures . . . Tully feels sorry for deluded girls who skip meals and the joys which follow the cosmic urge in the rearing of children, for the wormy apple of cinema success—so much soda to be jerked in the world—tables to be waited on—by lovely lassies too beautiful and brainless to visualize an old actress in her fading glory. And besides, says Jim, he often has to dig down into his jeans and stake them enough to eat on . . . If only they would remember that fame is merely the prolonging of neighborhood gossip and that movies are as quickly forgotten as names of Pullmans.

Einstein came to Hollywood, and was cheapened more than Hitler can ever cheapen him, groaned Tully, who felt sorry for the majestic gray-headed man.

Another man came to Hollywood, Tully almost wept . . . His name was Serge Eisenstein, whose brain was vast . . . but his compassion was vaster . . . Who was lashed by a little man, until the flesh showed raw . . . Another who rates Tully's respect is Jack Oakie . . . "a clown to please the heart of Moilere," but Oakie wouldn't understand that . . . Of the late Paul Bern, to whom Tully bowed low, he said that he was an understanding comrade, who faltered on the journey . . . but that now Bern was the fleece of a cloud . . . on a far-away star.

STARDUST -:- Following Studio Reporter On Rounds of Hollywood -:- ILLUSION

Girl in Teens Signs Long Contract

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 14.—Seventeen-year-old Rochelle Hudson was to appear before a Los Angeles judge Saturday and ask him to approve the second long-term contract she has won in her brief career.

Signing now with Fox after RKO failed to take up her option, Rochelle proves once more that failure at one studio needn't discourage any young player.

Miss Hudson

At RKO for instance, Rochelle played only ingenue leads. Her first assignment under her new contract, and this shows the measure of her success, will be a full-fledged feminine lead in "Odd Thursdays." And she gets to play opposite Fox's romantic ace, Warner Baxter.

Of course, she didn't just step right into this. Fox tried her out as an ingenue in Will Rodgers' picture, "Doctor Bull." Then they gave her a sophisticated role in "Walls of Gold." It was the rushes from this picture that brought the long-term offer.

* * *

When Clara Bow decided to send her 11-year-old cousin, Lilian, back to New York, one of the transcontinental railroads called up and volunteered to see that she got there safely alone. Several hours later, an official of the company called again and withdrew the offer—fear of kidnaping.

Miss Harvey

* * *

One reason why Hollywood swains have not made such an impression on Lilian Harvey is that, in a single day, the blonde actress often receives several letters and a cable from Willie Fritsch, her leading man in Germany. Some would have the pair already married. At any rate, Lilian plans to take the first boat for Europe as soon as she can get a vacation from the Fox studio.

* * *

Everyone cheers the signing of Jack Gilbert to play opposite Greta Garbo in "Queen Christina." It would be interesting, however, to read the mind of Laurence Olivier, who was persuaded to make a quick dash from London to Hollywood to play the part. Mr. Olivier, a first-rate actor, will be used in another picture at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Mr Gilbert

* * *

Someone in Europe keeps spreading false reports of Buster Crabbe's death. The actor has several clippings from German newspapers reporting him a victim of heart disease. . . . The Richard Dix-RKO contract negotiations have reached the delicate stage. The studio wants Rich for two more pictures. He may not sign.

Al Boasberg, former office boy at RKO, has just signed there to direct three pictures . . . And look out, Harlem! Oscar Smith, Paramount's bootblack actor, is taking a transcontinental bus to explore the black and tan hot spots of the big city.

* * *

The most amazing sartorial display Hollywood has seen in months is that of Achmed Abdullah, who has come out here to write for Paramount. The author made his first appearance on the lot wearing a bowler hat, a monocle, a melon pink shirt, a yellow tie, a camel's hair sport coat, brown plaid trousers, two-toned brown sport shoes, brown spats and a stick hung from his wrist with a leather thong.

* * *

Did you know: That Joan Blondell once won a contest as the girl in all Texas who looked most like Madge Bellamy?

* * *

Has it been reported before, Ed Wynn's reply to the Hollywood director who was delivering a lecture on saving money? Wynn looked at him mildly, observed:

* * *

The will left by Louis Closser Hale was thoroughly characteristic of the beloved star. In one clause, addressed "To my friends," the actress confessed she couldn't even try to remember all the people she felt close to. She asked any friend who wants something of hers to remember her by, to go to her executor who has been instructed to take care of such requests.

Plays and Players :: By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

* * *

This is the week for a Stage Guild production, but the performances will be given Thursday and Friday instead of Monday and Thursday, which has been the schedule of this group at Oakmont. "Manly Man," by Alfred L. Golden, Pittsburgh playwright, will be presented in the Oakmont High School.

* * *

The show business is definitely looking up. Under the New Deal business in the movie houses is improving. NRA regulations have caused an increase in theater employes, the Penn alone having augmented its staff by 18 persons, according to Manager Mike Cullen. The Variety and Pitt are preparing to reopen, the former with burlesque and the other house with stock. There also are negotiations with the musicians preliminary to possible resumption of "flesh" shows in the Stanley and Penn.

Coming Out of the Ether

REMEMBER the famous story of the Canadian who served through four years of the World War, and, after returning home without a scratch fell from a chair a week later and broke his neck? Well, shake hands with the poor fellow's cousin. I'm a man who sailed the seven seas without so much as a headache—and broke my knee on Long Island Sound!

'S an absolute fact. It happened a little more than a week ago, and I've been in the French Hospital ever since. You probably haven't noticed much change in my stories, even though it has been pretty tough turning them out. So many of my yarns sound as though they were written under the ether that, when I'm finally given a load of the stuff, nobody knows the difference.

Ask me how it happened and I'll tell you that I haven't the slightest idea. I always thought that guys broke their legs when they fell during games or when they leaped from windows as the husband started knocking at the door. But now I know differently.

I was a member of a party aboard the classy speedboat, "Pride of the Bronx," owned and operated by Mr. Nick Glad, my jovial father-in-law. The "Pride of the Bronx" is well known in Long Island waters, groups of people always gathering around to see whether or not it will start. Wagering is generally at even money and you can always get a bet.

Once under way, however, the "Pride of the Bronx" rides the waves as prettily as the Bremen or the Europa. It sails steadily along, maintaining an average speed of two to three knots an hour. Mr. Glad, the skipper, is a man who knows every rock in Long Island Sound—and often hits one just to prove it.

Well, on the day of the accident the "Pride of the Bronx" was on its best behavior. The weather was perfect, the steering wheel was still intact and the motor had only died twice. The old boat was giving a remarkable performance.

In due time—say, seven or eight hours for the 20-mile ride—Mr. Glad steered his trim craft toward the inviting dock of the Shore Island Yacht Club. I call the "Pride of the Bronx" a trim craft because, when Mr. Glad bought it he was certainly trimmed.

Now, so far as the docking of the "Pride of the Bronx" is concerned, it is a comparatively simple matter. Mr. Glad simply heads directly for the pier and strikes it in the middle. That knocks those in the front of the boat right on to the pier. Whereupon they scramble for ropes, and the boat is tied up. If this scheme misses by any chance, of course, Mr. Glad simply backs away and hits the dock all over again.

On this day, however, Mr. Glad did something that he had never before attempted. Without telling any of us about it, he decided to land at the Shore Island pier just as any other boat might do it. In other words, he was going to dock his boat without hitting the pier first!

And, by golly, that's just what he did. I was the first to realize what was going on—and my heart swelled with admiration. Little did I realize that, in a few seconds, my knee was going to swell the same way.

It was a jump of slightly less than two feet from the boat to the dock, and since I wanted to be the first to cheer the actual landing, I immediately took the short drop. I landed squarely on both feet and I turned swiftly in order to catch a rope. My left leg shot out and I fell upon it with a beautiful crash.

I guess the pain must have been pretty bad at that point because I'm afraid I'll have to admit that I fainted. I awakened some time later to find a doctor bending over me. Down in the vicinity of my knee was a pain that I hesitate to describe. But on the doctor's face there was such a smile as I haven't seen in many a day.

"Beautiful!" breathed the doctor. "Absolutely beautiful. Ah, me! So beautiful!"

I twisted around on the pier and gazed from the doctor's kisser to the faces of those who had gathered around me. I was in agony, but I wasn't going to miss a sight that was as beautiful as all that. I saw nothing, and I looked at the doctor in astonishment.

"What are you talking about, doc?" I groaned. "I don't see anything beautiful around here."

The medico rubbed my fevered brow.

"Of course not, my dear boy," he cooed. "You must simply lie quietly and take my word for it. You have the most beautiful broken knee I have ever seen!"

The events of the next few hours are still rather hazy to me. I remember my left leg being placed in a cast that weighed slightly less than fifty tons—and I remember a hurried ride back to New York, durwhich nobody could do enough for me. People who hadn't spoken to me for years now hurried to get me glasses of water. I hadn't seen a glass of water in years either, however, so that made it even.

At any rate, before I quite realized what had happened, I was lying in the bed in this hospital that I must continue to occupy for plenty of weeks to come. And it was then that I first realized just how serious my accident had been.

How hot it was! How my leg pained! How terribly uncomfortable my cast was! How very long it would seem until I was out again!

The hours passed. They gave me pill after pill and injection after injection. Nothing seemed to help much. Time wore on. Hot, miserable, unbearable time. I don't think I was ever quite so miserable in all my life.

And then, around 4 o'clock in the morning, I fell asleep. It was my first relief after what seemed to be an eternity of pain. I dozed off—and in less than five minutes I was awake again.

It was my night nurse—and a grand woman she is!—who did the trick. She wakened me when she attempted to fix the pillows around my head. After all that time—just five minutes to sleep! I looked at her with a scowl.

"What's the idea?" I growled.

She smiled sweetly.

"I just wanted to ask you," she murmered, "if you were comfortable?" . . .

The next morning was the end of that terrific heat wave we went though last week. I was stretched out in bed, staring at the ceiling and wondering if anyone else in the world felt quite so miserable as I did at that particular moment.

The heat was unbearable. My hospital room looked gloomy and decidedly cheerless. I longed for the beach and the ocean. And all the while I knew that they would be denied me for the rest of this year.

Came a knock at the door, and my secretary walked in. I looked at him through heavy eyes.

"Good morning," I muttered. "Isn't this heat awful?"

He removed his coat and flung it across a chair.

"Awful isn't the word for it," he exclaimed vehemently. "The streets are absolutely burning. Boy, are you lucky to be inside instead of outside on a day like this!" . . .

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Rafaelo Diaz, Metropolitan Opera Company tenor, was the "surprise" at the salon recital the junior Thomas W. Phillipses gave at their Butler home, Phillips Hall, yesterday afternoon.

Diaz, an old friend of the Phillipses, sang at another salon recital the Phillipses gave a year or so ago.

Gown of Chiffon

Mrs. Phillips wore a printed chiffon gown in which reds and blues predominated, and her young daughter, Margaret, was in white. Another daughter of the Phillipses, Mrs. Leander McCormick Goodhart, the former Janet Phillips, was there.

Mrs. Goodhart and Mr. Goodhart are again in Butler with Mrs. Goodhart's parents after a trip to the Adirondacks.

Among the many attending the salon recital were Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., Mrs. James G. Pontefract, the James O. Flowers, the George Pomeroy Bassetts.

Others were the T. A. Mellons and the J. B. Sellerses, the Mellons' son-in-law and daughter; the H. Allen Machesneys, the Wilmer M. Jacobys and the Andrew B. Bergers.

Louise Evans and her brother, Oliver Evans, were there, the Samuel Harden Churches, Miss Margaret Coulter, of Greensburg; the Carroll Millers, the Charles W. Dahlingers, Fiedler Clarke, the W. Edgar Reeds and Mrs. Harry Mitchell.

* * *

Louise Evans, post-debutante, and young student-artist—she's exhibited with the Associated Artists—will be off this week for a winter in London, a winter of painting as well as partying.

Attractive Louise, whose portrait by William R. Shulgold, Pittsburgh artist, has been exhibited, will be off with the Donald Doyles, of London, and will be their guest.

Winter In London

The Doyles have been visiting Mrs. Doyle's sister, Mrs. James H. Horner. Of course, you know that Louise is the Henry Oliver Evanses' daughter. Mrs. Doyle is an artist of note, by the way.

The Alex J. Barrons, of Glen Osborne, are spending the summer in Norway and Sweden. And while they're away, Elizabeth Crampton is "keeping house" for her aunt. Elizabeth will be a sophomore at Radcliffe this fall.

* * *

Mrs. Barron will still be in Europe at the time of the County Fair. So she's asked Mary Louise Davison, of Edgeworth, to take charge of the flower exhibit for her at the Fair. Mrs. Barron is chairman of the Farm and Garden Association of Allegheny County, by the way. And she's also a member of the Allegheny County Garden Club, and of the Sewickley Village Garden Club.

* * *

Exhibits In Gotham

Neville, since he is an artist himself, was particularly interested in the drawings shown at the Field Museum. He'll have an exhibit in New York next month.

Mrs. Henry R. Rea, who's abroad this summer and who is in Switzerland now, is expected home October 10.

INDIA TEA

BETTER TEA for BETTER TIMES

BETTER times are back again. Time for better things. If you have been stinting yourself—buying less than a choice, fine flavored tea—turn over a new leaf. Treat yourself to tea containing genuine India Tea. It's full flavored, fine tasting, winey.

India Tea is so reasonable in price—and so much better—that you will regret not having tasted it sooner. It has that expensive taste. So different. So distinctive.

Next time you buy tea, get a package of India Tea. To be sure you get the genuine, always look for the Map of India (above), in addition to the brand name, on every package of tea you buy.

SMART NEW AUTUMN COSTUMES AWAIT HINT OF COOL WEATHER

ONE DAY soon, probably without the slightest warning, it will turn cool. Are you prepared? Long before the summer is over the smart woman will have selected her costume to launch on the first autumn day. She'll be the enormously chic woman you'll spot in town, looking like a page out of a fashion picture book. In all likelihood she'll wear something in woolen like the superb example on the left.

* * *

SUCH A costume deserves a whole story because it illustrates so much that is new, and embodies so many fashion-firsts.

* * *

IN SPITE of the elegant new grays, blues, purples, greens, reds and browns, black has tremendous importance. This dress is black. In addition to the significant return of tweeds, the revival of ribbed fabrics, the prominence of velvet and satin, sheer woolens that look like silks are causing excitement. This dress is of sheer woolen.

* * *

ADVANCE FASHION bulletins report that peplums will return. This dress—and it is very smart—has a simple flared band at the hips, really a modified peplum. It's a clever application of a trend.

* * *

THE DUST ruffle lining a flounce around the bottom of a slim straight evening dress caused a sensation recently. This same bias flounce, minus the ruffle, appears in a modified version on the same dress we're raving about.

* * *

HIGH NECKLINES are in. White hand crochet as a trimming has already proven itself. In this case the demure little high collar and gilet are of a course handmade mercerized lace, an encouraging idea for those handy with a crochet hook.

* * *

IF ANY one dress could combine more fashion, we have not seen it. In its simple straight lines it conceals limitless dash.

* * *

NOW LOOK at the hat. Monkey fur has invaded millinery. But it is used discreetly, often amusingly as if it were stiffened feathers. This beret-type has a spray of monkey fur jutting through a fold in the crown. It gives the impression of slim, curled quills.

* * *

OTHER THINGS seen to keep in mind: The button-up-the-hem idea has taken. Skirts are narrow, and to walk easily, slits are necessary. The bottom buttons are left open. . . . There is a feeling that princess lines are returning. . . . Printed satins are of importance, either as scarf and bag sets or as entire dresses, best in the evening. . . . High fur neck pieces and flat muffs with plain dresses are forecast, as well as wine, green and raspberry suede gloves to wear with neutral woolen ensembles. . . . The part velvet, part plain fabric dress will play a big role in day dresses this fall. . . . A very high fashion for daring ones to adopt is one single bright touch of orange against slate gray. This is in preference to yellow with gray, the more commonly used combinations.

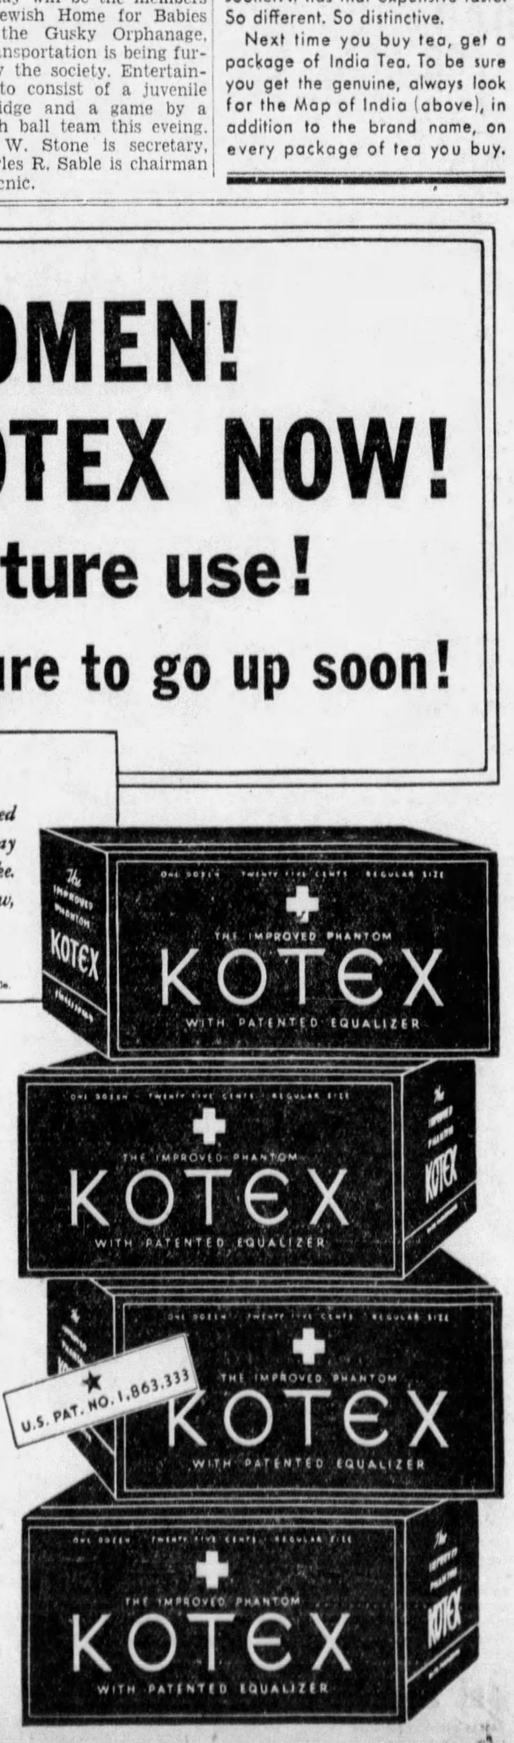
Prices are sure to go up soon!

Cotton, gauze, all materials used in making Kotex have gone 'way up. Kotex costs much more to make. . . . Buy several packages now, while prices are still low.

Illustrations and text copr., 1933, Kotex Co.



Kotex is worth a great deal more than you have been paying for it. Such phenomenally low prices were possible because of the very low price of materials used in making Kotex.

Today, those prices have advanced tremendously. Kotex prices, to dealers, have already increased.

Pay no more than 25 cents

Equalizer Kotex costs a great deal more to manufacture today than it did a few months ago. So we advise you to buy now for the future.

This is the new type of Kotex with processed center strip . . . the patented Equalizer . . . and ends flattened, rounded, tapered for inconspicuous protection.

20 to 30% greater protection

Is is softer, more fully protective than any sanitary pad you ever knew. Disposable. Can be worn on either side equally well. It is a more expensive article to make. It is bound to cost you more within a short time.

Today, go to your favorite drug, dry goods or department store. Buy as generous a supply as you can at present prices. We believe this fine sanitary protection will never cost so little again.

LURE OF DEEP FOR CONTEST WINNERS

Cruise Contest Rules

Here are the easy rules for the Sun-Telegraph "Contest Cruises":

Answer all 20 questions. There will be two questions every day in the daily Sun-Telegraph for 10 days beginning August 10 and closing August 21.

Write a letter of not more than 50 words telling why you need a vacation this summer.

Send answers and letter to the Cruise Contest Editor of the Sun-Telegraph. Four winners will be selected, two for each cruise. Correctness of answers and cleverness of letters will be considered in selecting winners. Judges' decision will be final. No entries will be returned. All entries must be in not later than August 25. Winners will be announced as quickly as possible after that date. In the event of tie, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

The two entrants submitting the most nearly correct sets of answers, accompanied by the most convincing letters, will be awarded 10-day cruises to Florida, all expenses paid. The next two most nearly correct sets of answers accompanied by the most convincing letters will be awarded 7-day cruises to Boston, expenses paid.

Entrants must be over 16 years of age. Employes of the Sun-Telegraph or their families, or employes of radio station WCAE, are not eligible to participate in the "Contest Cruises."

Sailing over sparkling blue seas, with salt breezes spanking the decks—this is one of the treats awaiting Sun-Telegraph readers who win the four "Contest Cruises." Two of the cruises will take 12 days—from Baltimore to Florida and home again.

The cruises will include a motor trip the entire length of Florida, along Palm Line road from Miami to Jacksonville with stops at Daytona Beach and St. Augustine.

The two Boston cruises will cover a week with three days in and around Boston, including visits to Concord and Lexington of Revolutionary fame.

These cruises will be made on the palatial steamships of the Merchants and Miners Line, sailing out of Baltimore. There will not be a penny of expense to the winners. Everything will be first class and railway fares with Pullmans will be furnished from Pittsburgh to Baltimore and return.

KANE IN RACE FOR COUNCIL

Declaring he would continue the fight he had started in Harrisburg on the Mellon-Coyne machine, Representative John J. Kane, Nineteenth Ward, today announced as a candidate for a Democratic councilmanic nomination.

In Harrisburg, Kane was a hard fighter for social legislation, and led the battle against the rules with which the Republican organization strangled efforts to get such bills to the floor of the House.

Kane today said he had been offered a place on the ticket with John Henry, opponent of McNair, but had turned it down because "Henry, drawing salary checks from two Republican offices at the same time, one in Allegheny County and the other from the state, is entitled to no consideration at the hands of Democratic voters."

Henry was employed as an election frauds observer by the Republican County Commissioners and as a real estate appraiser by the State Banking Department.

In his statement Kane said:

"The five-month session of the Legislature afforded me a wonderful opportunity to observe at first hand how minions of the Republican machine like Senator James J. Coyne betray their constituents. Pittsburgh cannot get decent and representative government so long as Mellon has the power to give orders to Coyne, and Coyne power to carry out the orders of Mellon."

Boy Berry Picker Slain Accidentally

ROCHESTER, Pa., Aug. 14.—Peter Perrotti, 11, of Steubenville, O., died in the hospital today here of a gunshot wound in the head, accidentally inflicted by John Verzela, 12, son of Sam Verzela of Midland. The two boys had gone to the country to pick berries when the accident occurred.

WARD DEMANDS WORK DETAILS

Mayor John S. Herron will be asked to state what improvements the Sixteenth Ward is to receive from the $300,000 relief funds, as a result of a meeting of the Sixteenth Ward Improvement Association in the Brashear Settlement, Holt street, yesterday.

A resolution was adopted authorizing E. P. Holland, chairman of the association, to ask Mayor Herron for the statement. Speakers at the meeting accused the Mayor of evading the issue by discussing the amount of labor used instead of the type and extent of the improvements.

TWO HOME LOAN HEADS TO TALK

Ernest T. Trigg, of Philadelphia, chairman of the Federal Home Owners' Loan Corporation, and T. D. Webb, member of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, of Washington, are expected to attend a meeting of Pittsburgh shareholders in William Penn Hotel tonight at 7:30. State legislation to support the corporation in its effort to prevent loss of many homes will be urged.

Theater Party, Dance For Artillery Group

A theater party and dance at the "Willows," Oakmont, Friday night, was announced today by the Pittsburgh Chapter, Coast Artillery Association, as its summer event. The featured attraction will be presented by the Stage Guild of the Oakmont High School.

Col. James S. Ervin heads the committee.

START SURVEY OF BRIDGE SITE

With a crew of county surveyors and engineers busy surveying the site of the proposed West street-Brown's Hill toll bridge, residents today are more hopeful of early action on construction. The bridge, if built, will be one of the first federal self-liquidating projects in this district.

The county engineers have started the detailed measurement of the bridge site. With a transit mounted on the brow of Brown's Hill, where it looks directly across the Monongahela River up West street, the engineers computed angles on a base line measured along the B. and O. tracks below.

The proposed bridge, according to present plans, will begin at Eighth avenue, Homestead, and follow West street as an elevated viaduct. After spanning the river, it will join the present Brown's Hill road at the first left curve. Only a three per cent grade will be required. It is proposed that houses in the way on Brown's Hill will be either moved to other lots or razed.

"I want my husband to admire my skin"

A WIFE never forgets that a clear skin is irresistible and that some other woman might prove more attractive.

How can she have a clear skin, too?

There is one way which many have found efficient . . . by restoring deficient red-cells and hemo-glo-bin (skin and tissue purifier) to the blood.

The Menace of Electric Shock

A recent newspaper clipping tells of the untimely death of a noted citizen, accidentally electrocuted in his bathtub. Evidently he touched an electric outlet and received the fatal shock. This danger is greater than most persons realize. It is probable that many of my readers saw the same news item and yet they fail to get the proper warning of this danger.

Dr. Copeland

Electric shock occurs when the body is moist or wet. This accident is usually traced to the unwise habit of reaching for the electric light, or telephone while standing or sittin in a bathtub. When the body is wet, it serves as a conductor for the current of electricity. Of course, the accident cannot occur unless the electric device is defective.

Loose fixtures, improper wiring and poorly insulated electric outlets are a menace to every member of the family. This danger is increased when the current comes in contact with a moistened body surface or open cut or abrasion of the skin.

I cannot overemphasize this danger. I want to warn all my readers to avoid contact with electrical fixtures and wires which may be defective or insufficiently insulated. Do not touch or fuss with electrical appliances if you are not clothed, or if your skin is moist from perspiration or from bathing.

Never undertake to attach an electric iron, percolator or other electrical instrument if your hands are wet. It is a good plan to dry your hands always before you handle an electric fan or vacuum cleaner. This precaution is especially imperative during warm weather, when the palms of the hands are moist and clammy from perspiration.

A committee formed by the American Society of Safety Engineers is at present endeavoring to minimize the dangers of household electrical appliances. But safety can only be assured by the co-operation of every individual.

If you have an old electrical appliance in your home, such as an electric toaster, percolator, curling iron, or laundry iron, I advise that you have the wiring changed occasionally.

TWO DIE AS KILLERS VISIT HILL, NORTH SIDE HOMES

POLITICS

Two Young Candidates To Enliven Campaign

By MARK SHIELDS

Pittsburgh's politics is to be enlivened in the primary campaign by the candidacy of two young men, just over voting age, who probably realize they have no chance of success, but have ideas, wish to impart them, and are placing a warning before the oldsters.

Mr. Shields

Of course, the old men will not be warned, which is the reason that eventually these young men, gathering a few years, making some more friends, may be taken seriously and, even if they have not the opportunity to put thei. principles into effect, those principles may be adopted through the force of a travailing public.

The young men are James J. Kavanaugh, a Duquesne student, candidate for mayor, and Allen D. Kerr, a Pitt graduate, candidate for sheriff. Both seek Democratic nominations. They planned a full ticket of young men of their own age.

But the father of one potential candidate said "No." The employer of another didn't want him running around to political meetings and the girl friend of another is reported to have put her foot down because it would have interfered with summer evening engag ments.

It's too bad that some of the more elderly candidates for various public offices haven't equally authoritative fathers, employers and girl friends.

The two young campaigners, however, are going through with the game. They do not, I believe, take their chances very seriously. They realize that for many voters this is still the age of venerating the stuffed shirt, the old platitudes, the threadbare traditions, of tieing to old men who make wars and then can't make satisfactory peace, who dawdle at Geneva and fail at London—and then ask the young men to come in and again clean up the wrecks created. But they deny the young men a voice which might avert the wrecks.

* * *

Take Ideas and Principles Seriously

At any rate the young men, Mr. Kavanaugh and Mr. Kerr, take their ideas and principles seriously, and intend to say a lot about them.

"The younger element, although it comprises one-third of the voters, has had no representation in government. Manifestly our elders have failed. We believe we should be given a chance to show what we can do in combating the evils of depression. We are not self-seeking politicians hunting lucrative sinecures in order to avoid honest work, but sincere young men seeking to give the city of Pittsburgh and the county of Allegheny an honest, intelligent government."

And then they show that they have been following political history with this observation:

"Candidates for public offices have been in the habit of indorsing such political tenets as reduction of taxes, work for the unemployed, the elimination of graft and crime, and efficient, economic government. Experience, however, has shown that, once in power, candidates elected on a reform ticket have forgotten all their promises."

While the young men confine their criticisms to "reform" candidates, they can extend it to some organization candidates.

In their platform they say:

"Organized crime cannot exist without the consent and cooperation of officials whose duty it is to destroy it.

* * *

Advocate Revision Of Present System

"We advocate revision of the assessment system by substituting a small group of experienced, professional assessors for the present large, make-shift bureau. We favor publicity of lists of property assessments for tax purposes.

"Pittsburgh is in need of immediate construction of wharf improvements, wharf boulevards and a self-liquidating town hall.

"The Hill district, the 'strip' and Oakland present housing conditions comparable to old New York's slums. A long-term building program, financed partially or wholly by the city, to wreck these districts and construct clean, efficient and healthful apartment buildings would provide employment and would erase the sore spots of Pittsburgh. They could be built cheaply and sold or rented for a remuneration sufficient to defray costs.

"We insist that the street railway company reduce its fare to five cents, the motor bus company its fare to ten cents and the other utilities readjust their rates to give service for a reasonable charge.

"We advocate relief to the unemployed through public works construction rather than by the present dole.

"The national recovery act required a national leader. National leadership alone is not sufficient; the Pittsburgh district must have its leaders to carry on its work. The present corrupt city administration and the supine Democratic party locally hold no promise of changing conditions."

Maybe this is a lot of space to devote to the campaign of two youths who aren't going to be elected. Perhaps some of what they say will be branded as "half-baked."

But upon occasion greater space has been devoted to dignified gentlemen who haven't had as much to say, and who actually didn't mean what they did say.

Broker and His Bride

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM W. REYNOLDS . . . HONEYMOON-BOUND

The Pittsburgh Stock Exchange member and the former Anna Clare Jones, of Moultrie street, as they sailed for Bermuda following their surprise wedding in New York Saturday. The new Mrs. Reynolds was cashier in his brokerage office here. Upon their return to Pittsburgh, they'll be at home in the Royal Yorke apartments.

BROKER WEDS CASHIER

Bermuda-bound on the Atlantic today were Mr. and Mrs. William Warren Reynolds, Pittsburghers, honeymooning after a surprise marriage in New York Saturday.

The bride was Anna Clare Jones, of 114 Moultrie street. She has been cashier in Mr. Reynolds' brokerage office here since the office was opened nine years ago.

The marriage was the second for Mr. Reynolds, whose first wife died a year ago.

When the couple return to Pittsburgh, in two weeks, they will live in Mr. Reynolds' apartment in the Royal Yorke.

HEINZ CHAPEL WORK BEGUN

Without ceremony, a steam-shovel broke ground on the University of Pitsburgh Cathedral of Learning campus today for the $800,000 Heinz Memorial Chapel, a memorial to the late H. J. Heinz and his mother, Anna Margaretta Heinz.

The structure is the gift to the university of Mrs. John L. Given of New York and Howard and Clifford S. Heinz, children of the late founder of the H. J. Heinz Company.

W. F. Trimble and Sons company are the general contractors, and Charles Z. Klauder of Philadelphia, is the architect. He also designed the Cathedral of Learning, with which building the chapel is planned to harmonize.

The chapel will be completed within 16 months, according to an estimate by the contractors.

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 14.—We must hand credit to the brains trust for its benevolent efforts.

However, we happen to know that in those New York State milk riots, one of the professors ran all the way back to Kansas University for his books on the subject.

Say, Jackie Coogan is fortunate he loaded up before they passed that child labor law.

We wore our wristwatch in swimming yesterday and it's now on a forty-hour week.

Now that Arizona has legalized repeal the boys won't have to put brown sugar in their moonshine.

All we need are fifteen more states. In a pinch, New York, Rhode Island and Connecticut are ready to vote again.

BIG VOTE URGED BY WOODSIDE

County Controller Robert G. Woodside, chairman of the Progressive Republican Committee, which is supporting Joseph N. Mackrell for Mayor, yesterday issued an urgent plea to the citizens of Pittsburgh and the county generally to make sure that they are qualified to vote in the coming primary elections, by seeing that they are assessed and paying their poll taxes.

Woodside said:

"This is the most important election in the history of our city. The opportunity to nominate and elect candidates who will give our city a square deal instead of the raw deal, must not be neglected by any public-spirited resident. The Progressive Republican Committee believes that this should be effected by the participation in the Republican primaries, and the support of Joseph N. Mackrell and his associates on the ticket, but it is the duty of every good citizen to cast his ballot, whatever his party affiliation."

4 BOYS KILLED AS LIGHTNING HITS TREES

Child Playing Banjo In Home Struck By Bolt

Lightning dealt death to four boys and injury to a fifth and to an elderly man in electrical storms late yesterday. Five of the victims had taken shelter under trees. The boys were all under 14.

Nick Mehollic, 12; his brother, Sam, 10, and Mike Roman, 8, were killed beneath a tree near Burgettstown, where their bodies were found by Mrs. Roman. The brothers were sons of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Mehollic. Both Romans and Mehollics operate small farms.

Waiting for the rain to stop, George Beitsinger, 13, was struck under a tree 100 yards from his home in Corapolis road, Moon Township. Playing earlier with companions, the boy's body was found by his family, worried by his failure to return home. A physician pronounced him dead.

From a clear sky, lightning flashed through a room in the home of James O'Brien, Dry Run road, Monongahela, striking his son, Earnest, 10, on the hand as he strummed the steel strings of a banjo. It the same room, a brother, Ethon, 22, was unhurt.

PAPERS FILED BY CLARK

Former Public Safety Director James M. Clark filed papers today as a candidate for City Council.

Petitions for Former Mayor William A. Magee as a candidate also were being circulated.

Clark is seeking nomination on both Republican and Democratic tickets.

Mr. Magee said he had not finally decided whether he would actually file, and would come to no decision until tomorrow. His friends, however, predicted that he would get into the race as an independent, free of alliances with any slate.

Magee personally obtained the petitions at the Elections Bureau. If he enters the race his friends say he will seek the nomination on both Republican and Democratic tickets.

Petitions for James F. Malone also are in circulation. Mr. Malone, like Mr. Magee, is withholding final decision, but the probabilities are that he will be a councilmanic candidate, also without affiliation with any mayoralty candidate.

All nominating petitions must be filed by 5 p. m. tomorrow daylight saving time.

The Citizens' League announced today that it was near agreement on its councilmanic slate. An announcement tomorrow was deemed likely.

Republican Candidate Quits to Help McNair

Bailey Gives Fight Against Coyne as Reason for Shift

James P. Bailey, of Morningside, today announced his withdrawal as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Council and his intention to support William N. McNair for the Democratic nomination for Mayor.

Bailey stated that his shift to the Democratic party was inspired by his desire to rid Pittsburgh of "Coyne and Coyneism." This must be accomplished, he asserted, if better election laws, old age pensions, lower utility rates and lower taxes are possible.

He said:

"I have been thinking matters over—I have been comparing the record of the Republican party at Washington with that of the Democrats; the record of the Republican party at Harrisburg with that of the Democrats at Harrisburg and—if anything more were needed—the blow to the hopes and prospects of the independent political forces in our city caused by the feud now raging for the Republican mayoralty nomination; consequently, a survey of all these facts brings me to the conclusion that the biggest and best thing I can do to help eliminate Coyneism in Pittsburgh is to drop my own aspirations for City Council on the Republican ticket and support for Mayor the man who most closely embodies the policies of President Roosevelt."

The split in the independent ranks, as represented by the candidacies of Joseph N. Mackrell and P. J. McArdle for Mayor virtually assures the nomination on the Republican ticket of Mayor John S. Herron, Bailey asserted.

Means Again Rejects Magistrate Post

William A. Means, former Twelfth Ward alderman, said again this morning that he would not accept the police magistrate's job made vacant by the recent dismissal of Charles A. Papale.

Mayor John S. Herron was to name Means to the position today if he could persuade Means to accept. It is unlikely that the Mayor will appoint anyone today now that Means still refuses to accept.

CIRCUS DRAWS HUGE THRONG

Stupendous, colossal, magnificent, tremendous and gigantic, the circus was back in town today for two days of hoopla at the Point Breeze grounds, Fifth and Penn avenues.

Under a driving rain accompanied by lightning flashes that roused the menagerie to advertised ferocity, the "thousand and one wonders" of Hagenbeck & Wallace were wheeled into place yesterday.

While lions roared and canvasmen struggled with the "big top," the crowd that had gathered to watch scurried to shelter from the downpour. Small boys, however stayed to watch while the main tent was hauled up with the help of a troop of elephants.

This morning all the "hundreds of features" were dry again and ready for performances at 2 and 8 p. m. They included Clyde Beatty, who would "rather sleep in a cage full of lions than in a Pullman car." Today and tomorrow he will perform in a cage with 40 of his favorite sleeping companions. But he will not sleep Neither the lions, Mr. Beatty, nor the audience are likely to catch a wink.

GANG'S VICTIM FALLS DEAD AT CHILD'S FEET

5 Grim Visitors Leave Death and Guitar In Wake

Two new murders in Pittsburgh called for solutions from homicide detectives today.

On the Hill, five men walked into the home of Mrs. Josephine Bucola, at 1609 Colwell street. When they hurried away, her stepfather, Carmen Gaglione, 38, was dead on a couch in the dining room.

On the North Side, an unemployed carpenter, Edward A. Sabel, 47, shot as he was called from his home at 938 West North avenue, fell dying at the feet of his daughter, Elizabeth, 9.

The motives in the slayings were not apparent.

Five men were being held in the investigation of the murder of Sabel. His daughter, Alice Elizabeth, told of a young man who called himself Martin asking for her father to "come out to the alley and see my dad about his house that was blown up by a still."

As Sabel and the stranger reached the alley a shot rang out and Sabel staggered back to the porch.

The five men arrested are Charles Gerwig, 28, of 940 West North avenue; Daniel F. McTague, 34, of the same address; Simon Albert, 38, of 900 Sherman avenue; Edward Schindler, 32, of 800 Federal street, and Joseph Stanshaw, 34, of 19 Jackson street.

The five were turned over to the Coroner by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Ceniral Police Court today. Frank Ferris, lieutenant of homicide detectives, testified the five had no connection with the actual killing of Sabel.

M'KNIGHT RUNS FOR COUNCIL

Hugh McKnight, North Side businessman, today announced as a candidate for a Republican councilmanic nomination. McKnight is expected to be on the same ticket with Register of Wills Joseph A. Mackrell, though at one time there was a chance he would run with Councilman P. J. McArdle, also seeking the mayoralty nomination.

Mr. McKnight

McKnight was delegate to the last Republican convention, and at that time had organization support. He was born on the North Side, and graduated from Penn State in 1904. He is chairman of the Sinking Fund Commission of the city, has been an officer of business trades associations. He is affiliated with many fraternal organizations and is a director of a bank and insurance companies.

In his announcement, he said:

"No pledges of any sort have been made by me except to serve, if elected, to the best of my ability, with malice toward none and charity to all. For some months friends and business associates have been importuning me to become a candidate, feeling that my business experience and the vision I have of improvements for the betterment of Pittsburgh should be brought into service on the governing board of the city."

LOCAL TRIO AFTER U. S. NET TITLE

AS TENNIS INTEREST both here and abroad begins to focus upon prospects for the men's national singles championship, starting on Saturday, September 2, at Forest Hills, with one of the greatest and most colorful fields in history slated to compete, it is gratifying to note that there is a strong probability of Pittsburgh's being represented in the classic by no fewer than three talented entrants—Dr. John O'Loughlin and Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, of the P. A. A., and Charley Lockhart, of the Pittsburgh Golf Club.

Dr. John O'Loughlin

According to rumor, it is likely that one or both of the O'Loughlins will be sent East as official standard bearers of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association, which, by the way, appears recently to have returned to a position of activity and some little influence in the councils of the United States Lawn Tennis Association. Lockhart, now vacationing at Lake Placid and playing considerable high-grade tennis thereabouts, also aims to drop down state for the national title event. Officials of the local tennis body have not yet decided definitely on the Forest Hills matter, but at the last annual meeting sentiment was overwhelmingly in favor of sending the city's ranking player or players in quest of Eastern recognition, and the national seems the lone event remaining.

AS TO THE selection of the O'Loughlins as representatives, the question hardly is open to discussion, for Dr. John captured the men's Western Pennsylvania singles crown this year, while Dr. Dave was runner-up, and it is generally conceded by the other racqueters of the district that the two P. A. A. aces are a goodly notch above all rivals.

Dr. Dave has been a competitor in national senior tourneys on numerous occasions. He was at Forest Hills for the nationals a year ago as an informal Pittsburgh representative and lost a well-played match with the crack Japanese contender, Kuwabara. Dr. John never has entered the nationals, nor has Lockhart.

ALL THREE PROSPECTIVE Pittsburgh entrants have achieved distinction in the national intercollegiates, and the O'Loughlins have merited honors in youths' national meetings at Boston and Chicago. Dr. Dave, in fact, reached national boys' semi-finals in 1921, and defeated Malcolm Hill for the same championship in 1922, so that national laurels are no novelty to Pittsburgh's most noted net family.

Lack of year-round competition with first-flight players has kept the Pittsburgh delegation from attaining form that might be called a menace to the aspirations of netmen who cover the Northern, Southern, Eastern, and even European circuits, but it is certain that, in case the above famous trio should journey to the Long Island gathering, Western Pennsylvania interests will be upheld creditably.

IT WASN'T SURPRISING to hear other players assert that the National League ball had been deadened to some extent this year, but now comes a complaint on the same score from none other than Chuck Klein. It's a pity about poor Chuck. Last year he batted .348. For weeks this year he has been leading the league with an average of .380 or better. But in spite of that jump of more than 30 points he is moaning about the ball. "There's a great difference in the ball this year, and I don't care what the owners and the makers say to the contrary," declares the Phil slugged. "I am sure the baseballs we hit this year don't go as far as the ones we hit last season. You hit it right on the nose now, hard enough to have knocked it out of the league in 1932, but it hangs right up there in the air and is an easy catch for some outfielder. The old rabbit's gone out of it."

Chuck Klein

WHILE KLEIN DOES not offer it as the explanation of his improved average this year, he says he has given up swinging for long hits to right field on the big parks in Pittsburgh, Boston and Cincinnati, and is just meeting the ball and sending it to left. Mel Ott, Lefty O'Doul and others are doing the same, he reports. Bill Terry always did hit well to left. Paul Waner is hitting inside the left-field foul line more frequently than ever.

As to the pitcher who gives him the most trouble, Klein backs up Joe Hutcheson in the assertion that Ed Brandt is as tough as any hurler in the league, not excepting Carl Hubbell. "I don't mind Brandt's cross-fire curve half as much as his high, fast one," says Chuck. "You can follow that cross-fire curve, but you're usually guessing at the high, fast ball. Brandt's a great pitcher."

THE YANKEES MADE four previous visits to Pittsburgh, and on the first occasion, September 8, 1920, a record was set for attendance at an exhibition game, 25,000 turning out to see Babe Ruth, who hung up a new mark of 54 home runs that season.

Another exhibition was played at Forbes Field on July 5, 1923, and a third in 1929. The other local Yankee invasion was a two-game affair of sad memory. It came in 1927 and before the Yanks left town they had the world series half sewed up, going through to four straight when the scene shifted to New York.

THE MIGHTY RUTH did not disappoint the home-run craving of Pittsburgh district fans in the first two exhibitions, thanks to some help given to him by the Pirates. In the 1920 game, George Whitted refrained from catching the Babe's little foul fly in the ninth inning to give him another chance to swing. Jimmy Zinn then grooved a pitch and Ruth walloped it over the wall about the center of the old 25-cent bleachers. In the 1923 exhibition, Ruth's act again was delayed until the ninth inning. Then George Boehler purposely grooved one and the Bambino belted it out of the lot three-fourths of the way down the right-field bleachers. Ruth's drives stood as the longest ever made here until Bill Terry, in a championship game on June 13, 1925, smashed one of Lee Meadows' pitches far over the left-center wall below the end of the new grandstand extension.

BABE PINELLI whom Forbes Field patrons used to see playing third base for the Reds, again has major league aspirations—this time, however, as an umpire. Babe is now working as an arbiter in the Pacific Coast League, and is doing a pretty good job of it.

But Pinelli still takes as much kidding from the fans as he did when he was a player. Recently a ruling was made in Los Angeles that all blind persons be furnished with white canes, so that they would be given the right of way. The following afternoon Pinelli received 10 white canes.

MANUS M'CAFFERY, a Cleveland promoter, attempted to stage a fistic show without issuing any passes, but the boxing commissioners demanded 147 free tickets. McCaffery came back with a smart counter move.

The promoter proceeded to rope off a "Dead Head Section," in order that the cash customers might see the segregated moochers. It was a swell idea, but an injury to one of the boxers spoiled it by forcing the cancellation of the show.

Lou Brouillard

EX-COLUMBUS STARS FINED SECOND TIME

DURHAM, N. C., Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Judge W. G. Bramham, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, today fined four former members of the Columbus (American Association) Club, for signing false affidavits in connection with their 1933 contracts.

Arthur (The Great) Shires and Gordon Slade were fined $200 each. James Lindsey and Charles Wilson were fined $100 each.

Previously the Columbus Club had been fined $500 and deprived of the services of the four men for the remainder of the season.

Goshen's Circuit Opening Delayed

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 14.—(AP.)—An overnight rain which left the track of Good Time Park soggy and slow today caused postponement of the opening day of the Grand Circuit harness racing program until tomorrow.

Today's program will be combined with that of tomorrow, and the postponement, unless further rain intervenes, will not interfere with the Hambletonian, classic trotting fixture which is scheduled for Wednesday.

SENATOR LEAD FOR PENNANT NOT SAFE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Babe Ruth had "a shine on his shoes and a melody in his heart," as he stepped jauntily off a Pullman car in Pittsburgh early this morning. The Bambino was as fresh as a daisy and in fine physical trim. His actions still reflected the boyish heart he showed on his first visit to Pittsburgh about 13 years ago, but the smile vanished and his face took on a fighting hue when Joe Cronin's Senators were mentioned.

Serious for a moment, Ruth mused:

"We're in a tough spot at that, aren't we? But let's see, it seems to me the Pirates had a lead of something like seven games at this time of the race back in 1921. You can never tell about this baseball, so it's up to us to keep hustling."

GLAD TO BE HERE

Ruth was up and dressed long before the Pullman rolled into the station from Washington, where Cronin's pacesetters handed the Yanks another defeat yesterday. As he saw the bright sunshine, he remarked:

"I'm glad to be back in Pittsburgh because I shall always have a pleasant memory of my first trip here. That was just about the time the Buccos flivvered on their pennant drive. I surely enjoyed that crowd at the park that day. I guess there were about 30,000 there!"

Ruth walloped one of the longest homers in Pittsburgh's baseball history on that occasion. Third-baseman George Whitted purposely missed an easy foul fly to keep Ruth at bat in his last time at the plate. Babe then smacked one into Panther Hollow and the mul-

RED SOX SET SCORING RECORD FOR SEASON

SENATORS GAIN GROUND; GIANTS RETAIN EDGE

Associated Press.

The Boston Red Sox, who have been looking more and more like a first division ball club, were in a position today to boast of the best scoring in the major leagues this season if they so desired.

Recovering from three defeats by Washington, the Sox went out yesterday, scored 11 runs in the first inning and walloped their favorite sparring partners, the Philadelphia Athletics, 19 to 10. This stunt, exceeding by one run the previous high score for the year, made by the New York Giants, was the outstanding performance of a day which saw the Detroit Tigers come from behind to beat the Chicago White Sox, 6-5, in a 17-inning game that fell just short of the season's record for length; the Washington Senators increase their American League lead to 5½ games with a 4-3 triumph over the New York Yankees, and the New York Giants, although defeated, hold their 3½ game margin over Pittsburgh in the National.

ERRORS HURT A's

A couple of errors by Dib Williams and Pinky Higgins started the Red Hose off on their great inning, the biggest anyone on hand could remember for any Red Sox team, and three Philadelphia pitchers were belabored soundly before it ended.

Vic Sorrell pitched the entire 17-inning route for Detroit and gave only three hits in the last nine frames. He was behind until the ninth when Hank Greenberg knocked in the tying run. Greenberg also made the winning tally, riding in on Frank Doljack's triple.

The Senators, playing a one-day stand against their nearest rivals, piled up 12 hits against young Russ Van Atta to earn a close decision when Dave Harris' triple led to the deciding pair of runs in the fifth.

The Cleveland Indians, who took fourth place Saturday, consolidated their position by trimming the St. Louis Browns twice, 5 to 3 and 3 to 2.

In the National League, the Giants couldn't match the Phillies' combination of Don Hurst and Phil Collins and went down by a 2-1 count, but at the same time Chicago's Cubs handed the Pittsburgh Pirates a 3-2 setback to leave the New Yorkers' margin unchanged.

TWO FOR CARDS

The St. Louis Cardinals moved into fourth place by taking two close decisions from the Cincinnati Reds, 3-2 and 4-3, despite the great work of Sunny Jim Bottomley. The Boston Braves meanwhile split a pair with Brooklyn, winning the first, 6-2, with a couple of late rallies against Ray Benge, but going down in the second, 11-0, before Walter Beck's five-hit flinging and a furious onslaught that brought the Dodgers seven runs in the first inning.

titude, giving him a prolonged cheer, started for home.

Asked about his condition, Babe exclaimed:

"I'm fine. Rabbit Maranville has something on me, though. I see he is still going strong."

A snappy redcap snatched up the Bambino's big grip at the Pennsylvania Station. The porter was as tickled as a kid on the last day of school. He shouted:

"Yo'all is lookin' fine—Mistah Babe!"

MUFF CHANCE TO GAIN

The Pirates passed up a fine opportunity to gain on the Giants as they lost to the Cubs in Chicago yesterday. The last clash of the season between the flag contenders brought a gripping pitching duel, but in the end Lefty Grimm clinched a victory for his team by hitting a homer. The score was 3 to 2. The Bruins won 12 of the 22 games in the season's play.

A smart play by Gabby Hartnett and Bill Jurges spoiled a ninth-inning rally of the Pirates which might have forced a deadlock. The Buccos entered the last round with a one-run deficit. Tony Piet started things merrily with a double, and Earl Grace went up apparently with instructions to bunt.

Grace tried to tap the ball on the grass, but he missed fire and Hartnett threw to Jurges to catch the fleet Polish boy off his guard. Tony was nipped. Woodie Jensen, batting for Swift in the inning, came along with a single, but the damage had been done.

Bill Swift was every bit as good as Lonnie Warneke as the Buccos bowed to the Chicagoans. Swift yielded but seven hits while the Pirates reached Warneke for one more than this number.

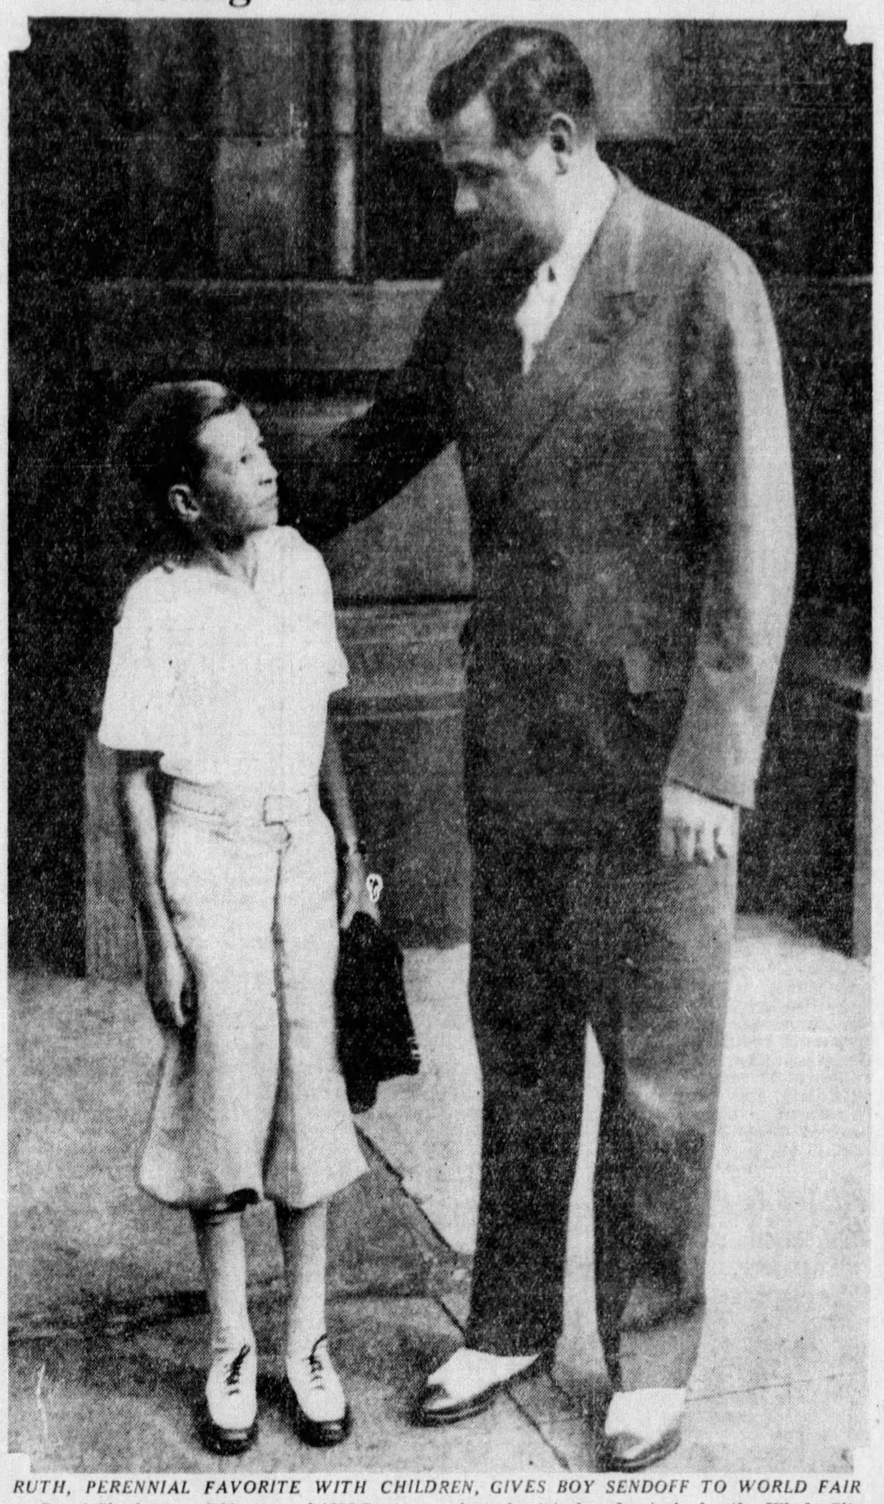
HOMER FOR GRACE

Grace delivered a telling blow for the Pirates in the seventh when he spanked the ball into the rightfield seats to tie the score. But Grimm came back in the home half with a four-baser that represented the winning run.

The Pirates scored in the first round partly on account of Jurges' fumble. Stephenson's double of the second inning led to a tie and the Cubs took the lead in the fifth on Grimm's single, a sacrifice and English's double.

The Buccos suffered no loss of ground to the Giants as they were trimmed in Chicago. The setback suffered by the league leaders meant that the gap of three and one-half games between the two leaders still held.

Young Admirer Greets Babe



RUTH, PERENNIAL FAVORITE WITH CHILDREN, GIVES BOY SENDOFF TO WORLD FAIR

Grant Shecker, aged 11 years, of 1655 Layton road, Wilkinsburg, received an added treat this morning while on his way to Chicago to see the Century of Progress Exposition. Shecker was just about to board a train for the Windy City when he spied the Babe arriving with the New York Yankees for an exhibition game with the Pirates. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

WEST PA. OPEN PLAY BEGUN

By TOM BIRKS

Sixty-four of the district's leading professionals and amateurs started out this morning over the Highland Country Club's well trapped layout in 36 holes of medal play for the Western Pennsylvania Open golf crown, now worn by Perry Del Vecchio, diminutive pro at the Greensburg Country Club.

In the field trying to dislodge Perry from the throne he has occupied since the tourney last year at South Hills, are many former West Penn champions, Ted Luther, of Valley Heights; Pete O'Hara, of Westmoreland; Vince Eldred, of Highland, all having won the toga since they joined the local paid brigade.

STARS ATTACK PAR

Many well posted golfers have predicted that the outstanding members of the tri-state professionals' organization will riddle the par figures of the Wellington course, but it must be remembered that par was not touched when the pros held their P. G. A. qualifying round over the same layout last year.

Del Vecchio will have to shoot great golf to retain his crown. Sam Parks, Jr., the new professional at South Hills, likes Highland. It was over the Wellington Heights course that he perfected his game. Fred Baroni, of Oakland Beach; Emil Loeffler, of Oakmont, may win if they play their normal game.

Jap Star Misses 1,500 Meter Record

TOKIO, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—By a margin of eight-tenths of a second, Arene Borg's six-year-old record for the 1500 meters free style swim, survived the slashing attack of Kusuo Kitamura in the second day of the national swimming championships in the Meiji Shrine pool yesterday.

Kitamura swam the distance in 19 minutes, eight seconds flat, but he passed the 100 meters in 12 minutes, 42 seconds, bettering the world record of 12:51.6 held by Shozo Makino, of Japan.

HURLS NO-HIT WIN

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Aug. 14.—Sugent, hurling for the Weston Moose, yesterday pitched a no-run, no-hit game to defeat the Fairmont Plebes, 3 to 0, in a game that clinched the second half title in the West Virginia State League for the Moose. He fanned nine batters.

Babe Talks to 'Kid' Fans With Globe Trotter

Babe Ruth will be satisfied if he can carry on two more years as a big league player, and then, if an offer to become a manager comes along, very well, he'll be glad to consider it. He's now in his twentieth season as a player.

Babe himself told his young and old admirers this during a radio interview with Louis L. Kaufman, the Globe Trotter, and Harry Keck, sports editor, of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, at 12:15 today, before hustling to Forbes Field for the New York Yankees' exhibition game with the Pirates.

Charles J. Doyle, baseball expert of the Sun-Telegraph, was to interview the Babe, but he developed a touch of laryngitis, and Keck went to the microphone as a pinch-hitter to put the Babe on the question spot.

Babe paid high tribute to Pie Traynor, of the Pirates, as the king of third basemen, and also to Joe Cronin, fighting young manager of the Washington Senators, a former Pirate. He explained that he hit his home runs by just "going up there and swinging. If you keep swinging you're bound to connect some time."

CITY CHAMPION MEDALIST

Mrs. Margaret Curry, defending champion in the Women's City golf tournament, won the medal honors this morning when he led the field in the 18-hole qualifying round with an 86, two strokes better than the card turned in by Miss Edith Clarke, who had an 88.

DEL VECCHIO OPEN LEADER

By TOM BIRKS

Perry Del Vecchio, diminutive pro of the Greensburg Country Club and defending champion in the West Penn Open tournament being played at the Highland Country Club today, spread-eagled the field in the first half of the 36-hole medal play competition to lead the early finishers by four strokes.

Shattering par for the course by four strokes by scoring a brilliant 67, Del Vecchio set a new competitive record for the Highland layout and placed himself in an excellent position to retain his laurels.

Trailing Del Vecchio in second place was Knox M. Young, Jr., of the home club, who scored a 71, even par. The cards of the leaders:

PIRATES, CUBS FACE TESTS, BABE SAYS

By BABE RUTH

Baseball's Highest Salaried Star.

The National League's big pennant test is just around the corner. Within the next two weeks the three Western teams, which have been in the battle up to date, will have to prove their ability to win on the road and at a time when the pressure is heaviest, or slide out of the fight and begin to think of next year.

The Giants, at home for the remainder of the month, are faced with the opportunity of making the most of this situation before hitting the trail for the final Western trip just after Labor day. But by that time they should have less opposition to battle against. The chances are that one or two of the Western clubs, already working under a handicap of several extra defeats will be eliminated during the coming swing through the East.

EAST HELPS GIANTS

I look for the other Eastern clubs to furnish valuable assistance to the Giants in these coming intersectional games. Not with the idea of making it easier for Bill Terry's men, but simply because all of them will be fighting to make as good a showing as possible. You know clubs can help one another while merely working to help themselves.

Here is the way I figure that help will be coming:

Bill McKechnie has his Braves battling for a first division finish and his pitchers have been showing fine form recently. They will be difficult to beat at Braves Field, so the Pirates, Cardinals and Cubs may expect plenty of trouble there.

The Phillies are about as tough a club on their home grounds as there is to be found in baseball. I realize that their pitching is none too good but they have Klein, Davis, Fullis and Schulmerich swinging every afternoon and these four have been among the league's five leading hitters for some time. It takes a lot of pitching to keep these fellows tamed in that Philadelphia park. And I think the Western clubs are about to realize this fact again.

DODGERS DANGEROUS

Now for Brooklyn. The Dodgers, on their showing to date, do not figure to get much higher than they are. They are through as a first-division contender. They have nothing in particular to battle for, so they can play a carefree game against teams which must be pressing all the time and worrying about the least slip in close games. Teams of this type often are bad news for pennant chasers.

Naturally the Giants will be out there, battling at top speed to earn the title which they never expected to be within reach at this late stage of the race. Their hitting has improved somewhat of late, and the pitching, which everybody thought would be too weak to hold the team up, goes on without any sign of cracking. When a team holds first place as long and as late in the season as the Giants have held it, you can be sure it is no accident. It can be credited to merit, and merit alone.

The Cardinals have lost valuable ground within the past month, and the Cubs are a bad road team. So I look for these to suffer more than the Pirates in the coming swing through the East. But you never can tell. The way teams have been having their winning spurts and losing streaks this year you can figure that anything is likely to happen.

PIRATES MAIN THREAT

I look to see the Pirates as the only team the Giants will have to worry about after Labor Day. And if the Pirates go into one of these tail spins on the coming Eastern visit, Terry's men may have little or nothing to worry about. At the start of the season I picked the Pirates to win the pennant. But they have not proved themselves as strong a club as I figured they were, and the Giants showed themselves to be a better ball club than anybody thought.

The steady and brilliant pitching of Hubbell and Schumacher make the Giants look best right now. Terry's men have enough hitting power to average about four runs per game and they have pitching enough to keep opposing clubs under this figure.

German Athlete Misses World Mark

COLOGNE, Germany, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Hans Sievert failed by 32.26 points yesterday in his effort in the German national track and field championships to equal the world decathlon record he set at 8,467.62 points in Hamburg July 23. His total was 8,435.36.

Ninety points ahead of his record-showing at the halfway point yesterday, Sievert failed to run the 1,500 meters in the second half of the program under five minutes, owing to a slight leg injury, and lost his chance there to surpass his old record. His time for the 1,500 meters was 5:06.

Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, dug into the serious part of his training today for his 10-round main bout with Vince Dundee at Forbes Field one week from tonight. At his training camp near Aliquippa, he was slated to begin boxing workouts against a corps of sparring partners.

Meanwhile Dundee was sequestered in his training quarters in New Jersey, where he prepares for all of his bouts. He will not arrive here until the night before the battle.

Promoter John L. Hernon is going through quite as tough a siege as the fighters, handling the ticket sale and arranging for the building of field seats around the ring and the installation of lights. He is filling the press reservations as well, and already has been flooded with requests for ringside seats. This show will house the biggest representation of newspapermen of any ever staged here.

The articles call for the principals in the main bout to come in at 160 pounds, and this does not mean, as Yarosz' manager, Ray Foutts, has pointed out, "give or take a pound." He said today that if Dundee is even an ounce over the limit of 160 pounds he will make him take it off at weighing-in time.

Sidney Wood Wins Grass Court Title

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Sidney B. Wood's warning to the men's tennis world was written high and in a bold hand today as the stars moved on to Newport for another tuning up before the national championships at Forest Hills next month.

The flaxen haired New York youngster fairly blistered the court about Clifford Sutter, former intercollegiate champion from New Orleans, as he climaxed his summer comeback with a straight set triumph in the final round of the singles play in the eastern grass court championships, culminating a week of sensational play with a 6-1, 6-4, 6-4 victory. He cut Sutter down with merciless brilliance and was always in complete command of the play as he took his first cup of the season.

BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK—

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—My next offering, ladies and gentlemen of the woodpulp audience, will be a sweet basso solo entitled, "Old Man Rabbit," he don't do nothing, he just keeps sailing along."

Nick Altrock

The subject of this handsome vocal tribute is this guy Maranville, of the Boston Braves, aged somewhere between 45 and 50, with a Mexican jumping bean for a head. Old Rabbit may not be in the Big Six for clouting the hoss-skin, but name me a faster-thinking and smarter baseballer, and you win the solid silver coal hod.

If they had a branch of the Phi Beta Kappa in the big leagues, the Rabbit would be wearing the master key for his watch charm. Just think of a guy pointing toward the half-century mark in there every day playing platinum-pointed baseball and the life of the party to boot. That's the kind of a baby for me!

MOUNTAIN LAKE PLAY OPENS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN,

Staff Correspondent.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, Md., Aug. 14.—The fourteenth annual Western Maryland tennis championships get underway with start of men's singles contesting on the clay courts of the Women's Civic Club here today. Undaunted by rains of last night that left heavy ground this morning, 32 entrants await inauguaration of the play.

Dr. John O'Loughlin, P.A.A. ace and Western Pennsylvania premier, looms as the odds-on favorite to repeat his local victory of 1932. The winged header is seeded first in a field dominated almost completely by Pittsburgh talent and, aside from Frank Broida, Harvard-Edgewood southpaw, who is rated second, and brother Billy O'Loughlin, who ranks third, there appears to be no contender likely to menace the reign of the defending titleholder.

No less than seven of the eight seeded aspirants hail from the Steel City or its environs, the foregoing trio being followed on the select list by Eddie Alcorn, Bob Lampus, John Brown, Bill Weber and Paul Sullivan.

Hammer Retains Tennis Laurels

JEANNETTE, Pa., Aug. 14.—Edgar T. Hammer, Greensburg, successfully defended his Westmoreland County singles title for the ninth consecutive year by defeating Ira Fox, Greensburg, 6-1, 6-1, 3-6, 6-3, yesterday in the annual county tennis tournament.

Play in the women's singles opens this afternoon.

CRAWFORDS LOSE

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 14.—The Philadelphia Stars and Pittsburgh Crawfords divided a doubleheader here yesterday, the home nine winning the first tilt, 8 to 6, and losing the second, 7 to 4. On Saturday, the Crawfords won from the Stars, 4-3.

GENE SARAZEN REGAINS P. G. A. TITLE TOGA

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Perched on the national professional golf championship throne for the third time, Gene Sarazen grinned one of his wide victory smiles today and chuckled.

TOURNEY SUCCESS

Sarazen's remarks were directed at his old pal of golf, Tommy Armour, who called him a "washed up" golfer in a blast that preceded the 1933 championship tournament and ultimately helped to make it one of the most successful ever staged.

No man can win the professional championship without a brilliant golf game and a fighting heart, but Armour's remarks about Gene being a "washed up" golfer probably made Sarazen a champion once again. Stung to the quick by Tommy's remarks, Sarazen suddenly made up his mind to compete in the championship and then played his heart out to win against Willie Goggin, 5 and 4, one of the best shot making strangers ever to enter the finals.

With fire in his eye, he qualified easily and then dusted off Vincent Eldred, of Pittsburgh; Harry Cooper, of Chicago; Ed Dudley, of Wilmington, Del.; Johnny Farrell, former National Open champion, and finally, Goggin, to clinch the title for the third time since 1922.

GENE UNBEATABLE

Cocksure again after winning his first championship of the year after he became one of the game's immortals by winning the British and American Open championships in 1932, Sarazen today struck off for Toronto to compete in the Canadian Open.

Goggin fought a great battle, but was just outclassed. Striking with a magic putter and spectacular irons, Sarazen drew away in the afternoon after Goggin had held him to a bare hole advantage in the morning and ended four under par for the day to gallop home with his conquest.

NET MATCHES DELAYED

BULLETIN.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Wet courts today prevented the opening matches in the women's national singles championship scheduled here today. Today's program will be combined with tomorrow's schedule, it was announced.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Courts drenched by an overnight rain today threatened to cause at least a temporary postponement in the start of the Women's National tennis championships at the West Side Tennis Club.

The courts were not in condition for play at noon, but the rain had stopped and the Weather Bureau held out some hope for sun to dry the sod. Officials said it appeared likely the matches could start late this afternoon.

Western Poloists Score Upset Victory

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Polo as they play it in the Far West today was one up on the more famous eastern brand in their first intersectional series for United States supremacy.

The Westerners, Cecil Smith, who refused to quit even after being thrown and rolled on by his mount; his fellow Texan, H. W. (Rube) Williams, and the Californians, Aiden Roark and Elmer Boeseke, Jr., went out yesterday in the opening match of the series at Onwentsia Club and trimmed Hitchcock and his men, 15 to 11, contrary to all expectations, before 12,000 tingling spectators.

Stella Walsh Loses Twice in Belgium

BRUSSELS, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Stanislawa Walasiewicz (Stella Walsh), Poland's Olympic champion, bowed yesterday in both the 100 and 200-meter dashes of Belgium's national track and field meet to Tollina Schuurman, of Holland, but raced to victory over Miss Christmas, of England, at 800 meters.

PITTSBURGH BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

In the ultra-modern, scintillating setting of the great Chicago World's Fair where everything represents the culmination of 100 years of progress, it is most fitting that Allegheny metal—the chrome nickel alloy manufactured by Allegheny Steel Company—should find wide application.

Decorative as sterling silver, stronger than steel and as immune to corrosion as glass, Allegheny metal represents a century of progress in modern metallurgy. Throughout the entire World's Fair Exposition may be seen modern applications of this ever-bright, ever-lasting chromium nickel alloy.

ON DOMES

The brilliant, flame-shot dome of the Sears-Roebuck Building and the pinnacle of the Illinois Host Building is covered with this satin-smooth, weather defying metal, illustrating its practical application to exterior building finish and other outside requirements such as the children's playground slides on the Enchanted Island. Within the enchanted palaces and ultra-modern buildings of the Fair Grounds, this stainless metal is everywhere in evidence from kitchen to reception rooms.

In the restaurant of Eitel, Inc., at the Twelfth street entrance, you see a good example of the decorative possibilities of Allegheny metal. A gracefully curving service counter with impressive ornamental arabesques greets your eye as you enter.

MANY USES

At the Old Heidelberg restaurant, Liquid Carbonic Corporation used Allegheny metal extensively in the installation of beer taps, drain plates and cabinet construction back of the great ultra-modern bar, while in front of the Atlas Brewing Company's deluxe bars may be seen Allegheny metal foot rails in place of the old-time brass rails. At the General Electric Institute this lustrous metal is used in the sink and drainboards of their modern built-in kitchens. It has also been adapted for the evaporator of the famous GE refrigerator as well as the heating element pans and supports of the GE stove.

Yet, with all its wide applications and utility, this metal stands like science, on the threshold of many new developments. No one can foretell the thousands of new applications that will be added in the future.

Interest Ban Reduces Banks' Demand Deposits

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—The prohibition against payment of interest by Federal Reserve member banks on demand deposits has caused a shrinkage of $732,000,000 since the restriction went into effect on June 16.

Weekly reporting member banks had net demand deposits of $11,207,000,000 on June 14 and $10,475,000,000 as of the close of business on August 2.

* * *

Funds Changed To Time Basis

The weekly statements of the Federal Reserve Board reveal that a part of this loss was transferred to the time deposits accounts of member banks which rose in the interim by 197,000,000.

Sponsors of the prohibition said it was placed in the new Glass-Steagall banking act to prevent abuse of a practice rather than to correct an unsoundness in the nation's banking legislation.

* * *

Rule Removes Former Abuses

The abuse, they held, arose from the practice of some commercial banks, especially during prosperous eras, of hiking their interest payments on net demand deposits to secure particularly attractive accounts. As these premiums were high, the banks themselves, it was contended, were forced to take undue chances on investments in order that their interest charges might be met. This meant, it was claimed, the sacrifice of safety for higher yields.

Expect Regular A. T. & T. Dividend

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Major interest in this week's scheduled dividends meetings attaches to that of American Telephone and Telegraph Co., due on Wednesday. Opinion in most Wall street quarters is that the regular quarterly payment of $2.25 will be ordered. Other important meetings on the calendar include Chesapeake & Ohio Railway tomorrow and International Harvester on Thursday.

SPEECH HELD IMPORTANT TO NRA SUCCESS

Just as the pen is frequently conceded to be mightier than the sword, so the spoken word is generally more effective today than the fisticuffs of a cruder age, according to Dr. Elbert R. Moses, founder and president of the Pittsburgh School of Speech. He said:

"It seems to me that speech will play a very important part in the NRA program. Every man should be able to express himself positively rather than negatively. These are days when men must be tactful and optimistic. They must be able to defend themselves on their feet, with words, not fists. They must be able to intelligently represent their employers in verbal battles."

People today thoughtlessly violate speech rules just as readily as they do civil or traffic laws, Dr. Moses said. However, the radio and the talking picture are making the American public more speech-conscious than they have ever been before. He continued:

"Tuning in on long-distance stations will familiarize radio listeners with colloquialisms and distant pronunciations, and have a tendency to promote a national standard of speech. More than 50 per cent of the words in popular usage are mispronounced today."

More calls are coming in from businessmen who want to perfect an effectiveness in speech today than in any period of the school's 10 years of existence, Dr. Moses said. Plans for the coming year include installation of a voice-recording machine, by means of which students may listen to their own speech and diction mistakes, trace their own progress and correct their faults.

STEEL DEMAND HOLDING UP

CLEVELAND, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Demand continued to support steel works operations at 54 per cent of capacity, the magazine Steel said today, despite the "increasing pessimism regarding early effectiveness of the NRA program." The review continues:

"Though this demand mainly represents requirements specified late last month in advance of price increases, business is holding up much better than usual so far this summer, and steelmakers expect new buying to be considerably larger in the last half of the month than in the first.

"Consumption in certain lines of finished products, notably sheets, tin plate, and wire is displaying remarkable vitality.

"Demand for raw materials continues strong. Inquiries from several steelwor' for heavy tonnage of basic iron have been withdrawn since the coal labor situation has improved. Pig iron shipments this month are 25 per cent ahead of those in the comparable period in July. Scrap is active with supplies light.

"Uncertainties with respect to industrial codes are exerting a dampening influence on federal and state construction work, closing dates for many jobs throughout the country being postponed."

Financial Topics

Phone Disconnections Show Signs of Reversing

Due to the new method of reporting disconnections on a quarterly instead of a monthly basis, the July figures of American Telephone and Telegraph will not be available until after the end of September. But from current gossip it appears that the rate of disconnections tapered off very substantially last month and that by October the system may be reporting expansion rather than contraction in total phones in service early in the fall, provided of course there is no interruption to the prevailing curve.

Motor truck sales, current reports indicate, have held up considerably better than those of other types motor vehicles. Reports gathered from the first 15 states to report on registrations show sales in July averaged 124.7 per cent ahead of those for the corresponding month last year and were 43.6 per cent greater than in June this year. On this basis total indicated sales for last year were around 33,000 units, against 23,500 units in June and 14,700 units in July, 1932.

The huge sums which the railroads of this country will need to spend to bring their plants back to pre-depression condition, is indicated by the fact that, as of April 1 this year, deferred maintenance-of-way on eastern carriers alone, was estimated to have amounted to well over $100,000,000, a total which will be substantially increased by the end of the current year unless the level of expenditures during the first quarter is materially raised.

"The Trader," in Barron's Weekly, says: "Despite the carefully-planned Washington intimations accompanying the government bond financing that inflation has been relegated to the background pending the appraisal by the admistration some weeks hence of the tangible benefits of the Recovery Act, the well-informed realists at the capital have no illusions on the subject. They insist that every utterance of the President points definitely to employment in some manner of his monetary powers.

Led by Homestake Mining, the gold shares were one of the few groups which advanced today, although required to weather some profit-taking. Gold shares were stimulated by the federal government's decision to permit these companies to export metal in the shape of amalgamates and concentrates, though the "ban" still holds on gold in bullion form. But under the latest interpretation, the mines may take advantage of the higher prices prevailing in world markets for the metal, $30 or thereabouts, as contrasted with the fixed price of $20.67 still maintained by the Treasury, realizing the difference except for the small cost of shipment and completion of refining processes.

The stalemate holding forth in the grain market made for a marked degree of interia in other markets, especially the share list. The break of the full 5 cents permitted in a given session on Saturday brought the wheat market down to the minimum prices fixed a fortnight ago. Wheat opened at those limit low figures today with a fair amount of offerings reported, but a lack of substantial bids. The trade and speculative fraternity in other markets is waiting expectantly for the termination of tomorrow's session as the fixed minimum prices are slated to expire at that time unless extended.

WORLD COTTON SUPPLY CUT

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Indicated world supply of American cotton for the current season is about 2,000,000 bales below last season, according to the New York Cotton Exchange service. The indicated supply computed by adding the August crop estimate adjusted to running bales and with city crop allowance to the carryover on August 1 is 24,207,000 bales, against 26,138,000 last season.

The service says:

"For the first time in four years the carryover on August 1 showed a decline from a year ago, and indications are that with efforts to reduce cotton production on the one hand through acreage abandonment agreements and to increase cotton consumption on the other by loans and removal of trade restrictions, the carryover will be reduced to normal proportions of 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 bales in the next few seasons."

Wholesale Price Index Declines

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(INS.)—Wholesale commodity prices again declined last week, according to today's index of the National Fertilizer Association. The index declined seven points from 67.2 to 66.5, 13 points lower than it was a month ago and is 42 points higher than it was at this time last year.

Only one of the 14 major groups in the index advanced, four declined and nine showed no change. Twenty individual commodities showed higher prices and 29 showed price losses.

Early August Auto Registrations Gain

DETROIT, Aug. 14.—(INS.)—The automobile retail market continued strong to feature Detroit business last week, figures announced today showed.

Registrations through August 9 were more than double the same period last year and 10 per cent ahead of the total on July 9.

Normal precedent of a decline in sales through August will be shattered this season on the face of current business and prospects, dealers agreed.

DIVIDEND NEWS

Gardner-Denver.

Gardner-Denver Company declared a dividend of $1 on the preferred stock, payable August 15 to record August 5. This dividend is in the form of a partial cumulative dividend as the total accumulation on August 1 amounted to $8.75 a share.

BONDS IGNORE INFLATION RUMORS

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Aided by the apparent "steady progress of business and industry, bonds maintained a fairly firm position during the past week although daily trading volumes generally were below normal.

Prime issues seemingly paid little attention to the renewal of inflationary psychology in the early part of the week, following a conference of the administration's monetary experts with the President at Hyde Park, but secondary liens, at least in some degree, were inclined to follow the movement of stocks.

Sales for the five-day week—Saturdays are holidays up to and including September 2—totaled $49,624,000 and the Associated Press-Standard statistics average for 60 domestic corporate loans recorded a net advance of one-tenth of a point at 81.2.

RAIL ISSUES FIRM

Rail maturities probably made the best showing of the various groups. Car loadings, while slipping in some sections owing partly to seasonal influences, were still far ahead of those in the same period last year. Electric power output registered a small percentage decrease from the gains of the previous week, but it was also in advance of the 1932 performance.

Except for a few specialties, the industrials were content to jog along a narrow trail. The somewhat unexpected drop in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation, as of July 31, was not taken too seriously because it was realized that the matter of codes, prices and other factors, combined with urgent shipments to pressing consumers near the end of the month, might have accounted for the decrease in the backlog.

U. S. LIST NARROW

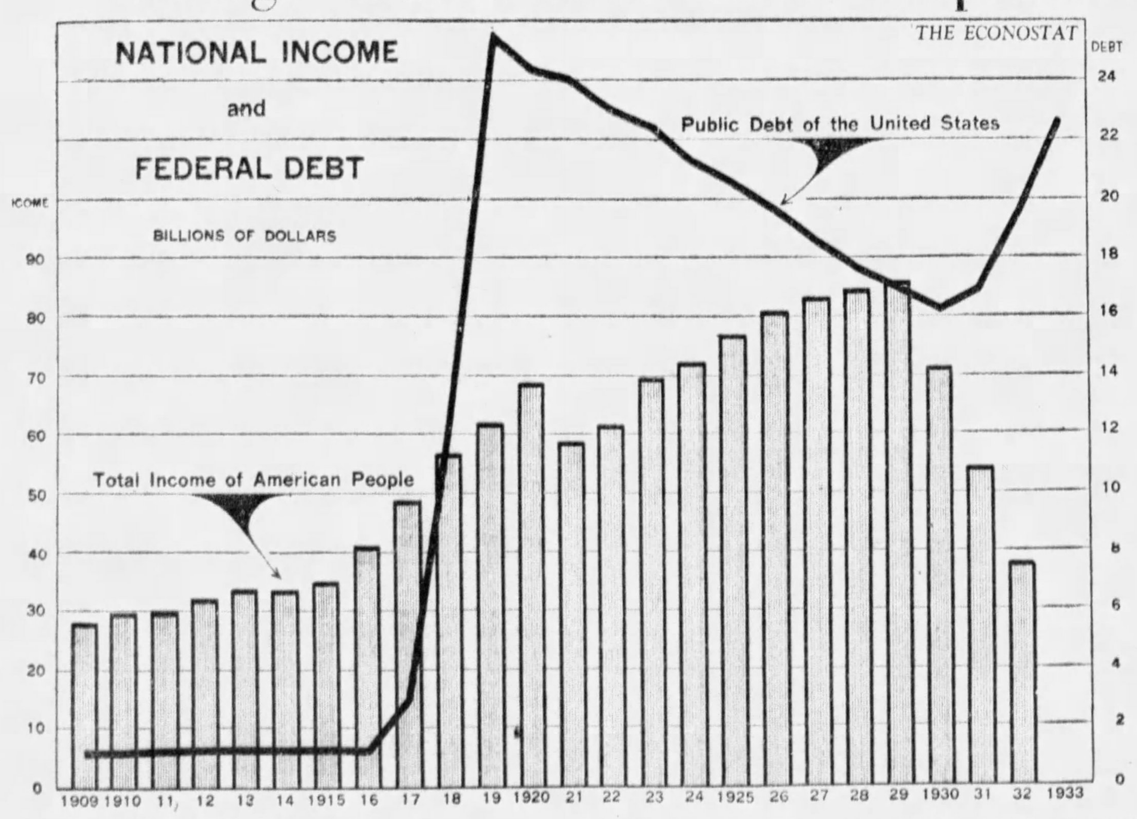
United States government securities were rather dull, with losses and gains held to minor fractions. The new 3¼s were listed during the week on a "when issued" basis and were quoted at 100.20 at Friday's close. Followers of the federal section were interested in reports that the administration was considering a huge refunding operation this fall which might include either all or part of the more than $6,000,000,000 outstanding Liberty fourth 4¼s, or some of the large amount of short-term indebtedness. Foreign obligations were usually inactive and moderately irregular.

Package Traffic Survey Launched

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The federal co-ordinator of transportation has launched the first of a series of transportation surveys designed to improve and co-ordinate freight and express traffic.

As a first step, a questionnaire has been sent to about 1,000,000 shippers and receivers of less than carload package and parcel freight handled by railroads, express agencies, trucking companies and forwardings.

U. S. Public Debt and National Income Change Courses in Economic Depression



By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE
Editor, the Econostat

The accompanying chart shows the course of federal debt and the national income of the United States during the last 25 years. The national debt reached its high point of $25,482-million in 1919 and its low post war point at $16,185-million in 1930. Since then it has been increased approximately $6½-billion.

The nation's income reached its all time high point of '29 at $85,200-million and declined to $37½-million in '32. No possible estimate can be made of income for '33, but it seems safe to say that it will be substantially above the level of last year.

These two series are related in a very definite manner. The ability of an individual to sustain a debt depends upon his current income and his prospects in the future. In the same manner the ability of a nation to serve its debt depends upon the income of that nation and its ability to carry the burden of taxation necessary to service the debt.

In order to prevent the service charges on our national debt from becoming excessively onerous it will be necessary for the national income to mount to a point where the relative debt burden will again become tolerable. The question is of particular interest at the present time because the United States is passing through a crisis in its public financing.

The new deal calls for the expenditure of enormous sums of money. The public works construction program alone involves $3,300-million. It will be necessary shortly for the Treasury to make some decision regarding the manner in which this prospective outlay and the huge floating debt can be funded

It is a reasonable estimate that as much as ten billion dollars in bonds may have to be floated to put the Treasury in a comfortable position. In fact, it is the ability of the country to absorb this huge prospective financing which will determine whether the government can effect the recovery program without an actual resort to the inflationary powers contained in the Thomas amendment to the Agricultural Adjustment Act.

Can the accumulated savings of the country take care of a $10,-billion appeal or will Uncle Sam be compelled to manufacture credit?

GOLD STOCKS MOVE AGAINST DOWNTREND

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Most financial markets were in the grip of the "dog-day" doldrums today and, with sentiment tending toward ultra-caution in further extensive commitments, prices generally displayed a rather heavy tone.

Stocks were particularly dull and floor operators accounted for what little business there was. Leading shares were inclined to sag fractionally to 2 points or more, although some of the gold mining issues and a few other specialties were steady to firm. Gains generally were unchanged at Chicago, pending the removal of the trading limit tomorrow, but wheat was off more than a cent a bushel at Winnipeg. Cotton was a little easier. Bonds were uncertain. The dollar displayed renewed strength in foreign exchange dealings.

The moderate demand for some of the gold mining stocks was in response to the government's ruling that concentrates and alloys derived from ores might be exported. Under the new decree, some of the gold produced in the United States may be sold abroad at a premium. Just how much of a profit can be made on this shipping arrangement is still a matter of some conjecture. The fixed price of gold here is $20.67 an ounce, whereas in the "free" market of England the metal brings around $30 an ounce. At the same time, shipping costs and higher production costs generally may shade the net returns of many of the companies that contemplate exports.

Traders were watching the grain situation closely for a cue as to the nearby trend of stocks. Public participation for the moment, it is said, is at an extremely low ebb. Orders on specialists' books, either to buy or sell shares at a fixed price, are reported to be the smallest in some time. Market observers, however, apparently are still moderately bullish, although it is pointed out that considerable irregularity may be expected over the next week or so.

The financial district is hoping that further confirmation of the business and industrial recovery will be furnished by the July reports of the leading railroads. Most of the returns for that month will begin to come in during the next week or 10 days. Net income of some of the carriers, it is felt, may not look so good because maintenance expenses jumped substantially during the month. At the same time, though, comparisons with last year probably will be quite optimistic.

STRIKES LOWER COAL OUTPUT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP.)—Strikes and seasonal fluctuations combined to reduce coal production during the week ending August 5, the Bureau of Mines reports.

The nation's output of soft coal fell from 7,550,000 tons, the previous week's total, to 6,770,000. Only 4,465,000 tons were mined during the corresponding week last year.

Anthracite production made its customary first-of-August drop, declining from 1,044,000 tons to 914,000. Last year's corresponding figure was 760,000 tons. All hard coal comes from Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania's bituminous coal production for the week ending July 29 was 2,060,000 tons as compared with 2,100,000 the previous week and 1,238,000 a year ago.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

General Motors Corporation, in its detailed report to stockholders covering the six months ended June 30, 1933, shows total current assets of $331,272,833, of which cash, government bonds and other marketable securities amounted to $200,488,763. Total current assets on December 31, 1932, were $283,258,874, of which $172,780,695 was in cash, government bonds and other marketable securities. Net working capital, explained Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president, stood at $259,499,831, excluding cash balances in closed banks. This compares with net working capital of $225,437,194 on December 31, 1932. As previously reported, earnings for the first six months this year amounted to $1.01 per share on the common stock, of which 90 cents per share was earned in the second quarter.

Armstrong Cork Company and subsidiaries report for six months ended June 30, last, shows net income of $1,070,284 after depreciation, interest and including appreciation due to exchange fluctuations of foreign subsidiaries. This compares with total net loss of $557,611 in the first six months of 1932.

Assets as of June 30, last, including $7,189,736 cash and marketable securities, amounted to $15,691,562, and current liabilities were $952,922. This compares with cash and marketable securities of $7,101,679, curent assets of $16,530,891 and curent liabilities of $697,724 on June 30, 1932.

Alleghany Corporation report for the June quarter shows net loss of $359,086, after interest, general expenses, etc., but before profit from sale of securities amounting to $1,041 credited to surplus. This compares with net loss of $344,161 in the preceding quarter and net loss of $13,695, exclusive of $600 profits from sale of securities in June quarter of 1932. For six months net loss amounted to $703,248 after above charges compared with net income of $250,403, exclusive of $11,940,505 loss from sale of securities charged to surplus, in the corresponding period in 1932.

International Printing Ink Corporation report for six months ended June 30, including subsidiaries, shows net loss of $127,581, after charges and taxes, comparing with net profit of $58,903 in first half of 1932.

Virginia Carolina Chemical Corporation for the year ended June 30 showed a net loss of $762,828 against a net loss of $783,509 in the previous year.

U. S. Playing Card Company and subsidiaries report for six months ended June 30, last, shows net profit of $506,400, after charges, depreciation and taxes, equal to 12c a share, comparing with $151,917, or 38c a share, in the like 1932 period.

Pet Milk Company and subsidiaries report for six months ended June 30 net profit of $373,796, equal to 75 cents a share on the common, against net loss of $119,848 in first half of 1932.

Thermoid Company and wholly-owned subsidiaries report for six months ended June 30 net profit of $410 after taxes and charges, equal to 1 cent a share on the preferred stock, comparing with net loss of $80,970 in the first half of 1932.

MARKET AWAITS OUTCOME OF NRA PLANS

By LEWIS HANEY,
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The existence of many cross-currents and much uncertainty was shown in the stock market last week.

There was quite a little upsurge on Tuesday and Wednesday, but it appeared to be chiefly the result of floor trading and some tentative revival of operations by a few pools, and received a jolt on Thursday and Friday, when commodity prices broke.

The market is probably to be regarded as being temporarily established in the June trading range, where it holds the bulk of the gains made on early anticipations of inflation, and waits to see the outcome of the administration's experiment in industrial control.

The froth of July has been blown off. Hopes and fears concerning the dollar and NRA remain.

There appears to be no reason for haste on the part of those who would buy stocks for the long pull.

FURTHER TESTING SEEN

A further period of testing and appraisal seems to be probable. The factor of uncertainty is very large while the professors study the "commodity dollar," and conflicts concerning industrial "codes" become more acute.

Naturally the action of the stock market reflects mixed trends. One may see some indication of a tendency to edge upward during the past two weeks. But the averages do not seem to be making a "path," or an evenly rising range of quotations, so much as a slightly rising triangle.

This seems to indicate that while there is good "support" and some tendency to buy on small recessions, there is also considerable liquidation on bulges.

SELLING HAS EFFECT

Probably some over-extended positions still remain. Accordingly as the averages reach a level which represents a 50 per cent recovery of the July break, enough selling comes into the market to hold the top of the range down.

As a result, it is not yet clear that the underlying trend is upward. This is well illustrated by the fact that a five-day moving average continues to recede.

In this connection, I note that a straight weekly average of stock prices still suggest the standard "head and shoulder" formation. The right "shoulder," now being forward, is not yet high enough to allow one to be sure that some recession may not still be in order.

CLOSE WATCH NEEDED

The actions of the market, if the averages again approach the highs of last Thursday, should be closely watched. If buoyancy should appear and little evidence of liquidation be seen, one would be justified in a moderate bullish interpretation.

I would watch the old-time leaders at this juncture. For example, United States Steel shows a critical range between 50 and 56, American Can between 82⅝ and 87¾, telephone between 123⅛ and 128½, and Atchison between 56⅝ and 63.

On the bear side, there are the reaction in commodities, the slight downward drift in bonds, the small "short interest," the reaction in business as seen in unfilled steel orders and car loadings, and the growing NRA confusion and resistance to regimentation order codes.

But one can say that the market has held very well in the face of commodity weakness, that NRA hopes are strong in some quarters, and that inflation is generally anticipated.

The wisest course is to stay out until the present confused and uncertain outlook is clarified.

UNWED FATHER KILLS CHILD

International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 14.—Characterized by police as "the coldest-blooded murder in San Francisco in the past decade," the slaying of a month-old baby, whose throat had been cut, was revealed today by the confession of a conscience-stricken 21-year-old youth, father of the child.

The father, according to police, is Frank Fabian, San Francisco athlete and physical culture instructor.

The mother of the baby was a young Swedish girl. Fabian told police, but he refused to reveal her name. He said:

"I couldn't stand it any longer. I was half-crazy. Last Saturday I went to the institution where it was born and took it home with me. I don't remember how I killed it.

"I placed the baby in a zipper satchel and threw it under the house.

"I didn't know what to do. Then I decided to go to Attorney Edwin V McKenzie. I told him."

Hit Run Suspect Seized After Crash

FRANKLIN, Pa., Aug. 14.—A motorist who, police said, was fleeing the scene of an automobile wreck in which three Franklin persons were injured, was arrested with his companion after a dash up a hillside street several blocks away. The two said they were Tony Kentema and Andy Jurkezy, both of Youngstown.

The injured in a car driven by Fred Frost were Mrs. Helen Frost, Harold Frost and Mrs. Harold Stilling.

Gripping Story of Life Behind The Scenes at Hollywood

By ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Leni invited Mulrooney inside. He entered with his shoulders hunched, like a heavy animal pushing his forehead against something he expected to move. For a moment he was not sure that he ought to shake hands with Leni, but her outstretched palm forced him to do so.

"Tell me—is there anything new?" Leni asked eagerly. "But first—are you here as a friend? Maybe you are an enemy. You come here—what does it mean?"

Mulrooney seemed a little off-balance in the presence of this intense and gorgeous creature, so strikingly informal in her silken cloth-of-gold lounging pajamas.

"The meaning of all this," he said uncomfortably, "is that your friend Cavanaugh sure gets into a lot of trouble for an innocent man. Everything he does come right straight back to you. Mind answering a few questions?"

Leni steered him into a low soft chair. Sinking into the cushions deprived him of much authority. Mulrooney was not at his best in any such semi-reclining position.

"Why have you locked Lucky up?" Leni demanded vigorously.

"When a man gets mixed up in two murders, one right after the other, it's time to lock him up," said Mulrooney defensively. "First that Kruger guy and now this Annette Santos."

"You don't believe he killed Kruger!"

"Maybe he didn't, but ——"

"Or that woman? You think he is capable of a thing like that?"

BECOMES CAUTIOUS

"I don't know, lady," said Mulrooney, peevishly. "And look here—I didn't come here to answer questions. I want to ask 'em. How much do you know about this Santos woman?"

"Nothing. I never saw her in my life."

"Ever hear of her?"

Leni hesitated. "Yes."

"When?"

A tremble of caution went through Leni. She wanted, of course, to help Mulrooney out. But the imperative necessity of the situation was to stand by Lucky Cavanaugh in any and every way possible.

She had not yet made up her mind whether Mulrooney was a shrewdly stupid honest man or a cunning antagonist with the heart of a tiger in his commonplace breast.

"Is it the law—am I compelled to answer you?" she asked, her finely pencilled brows pulling together.

"I'm trying to be nice to you," Mulrooney said getting up, for the softly upholstered chair made him feel hot and captured. "No, you don't have to answer me here and now. On the other hand, I can take you down to headquarters and hold you on charges, if I like. Cavanaugh has told me a story that sounds pretty straight as far as it goes. He came out here and stayed till after 2 o'clock last night. That woman phoned him while he was here. When he went home she was in his apartment waiting for him, he says. Nobody knows who shot her. The jealous woman theory is as good as any other. Now I ask you who would that jealous woman be? It might be yourself, for instance."

Leni's brain began to get fevered—not with fear—during the man's speech. It was impatience, irritation—anger at the persistent malice of fate and the seemingly stodgy intellect of Mulrooney.

"Why must you be so ridiculous!" she exclaimed. "You waste all your time suspecting the wrong people. It is too silly!"

Synopsis

At the premiere of her latest picture, Leni Luneska, beautiful star, is stunned by the appearance of her criminal husband, Karl Kruger. Lucky Cavanaugh, gambler, who has just seen Leni for the first time, tries to make Kruger leave. Later Cavanaugh goes to see Kruger, waiting in a small office. Kruger rushes away from Cavanaugh and surprises burglars in the next office. One of them shoot him to death. Detective Mulrooney, well acquainted with Cavanaugh, gives him four days to find the killer or be arrested himself. Lucky takes Leni home. Lucky is warned that the killer is after him to prevent him from "squealing." Kruger's murderer lies in wait to kill Lucky. Lucky, arriving home, finds a jealous woman, named Annette, waiting for him. Steve Poletzki, the killer, aims at Lucky through a window and kills Annette by mistake. Next morning, Leni is swamped with congratulatory messages on the premiere. Her success is assured, but more important to her than that is Cavanaugh's love for her. Herman Gerstenfield, noted director, calls. He tries to persuade Leni to sign a new contract. Gerstenfield tells Leni that he is her friend. Leni reads about Cavanaugh's arrest.

NOW GO ON

Mulrooney looked at her and blinked his clear blue eyes. Despite his thick body and the stubby red mustache on his slightly florid face, he looked driven like a perplexed and stubborn small boy.

"Maybe you could tell me what to do?" he said resentfully. "I'm willing to take orders from anybody that knows more than I do."

He walked around on the thick pile of the carpet of this very elaborate living room. Habit asserted itself and he took out a cigar, cut the end carefully and began to smoke without in the least realizing what he was doing. Tiny red veins in his cheeks made delicate tracings.

A GOOD DETECTIVE

There was no doubt that he appeared to be a thoroughly incompetent detective, yet he was, in fact, one of the three best of his kind in the United States.

"If you would do what I tell you, you would be a lot better off," Leni said, amazed at the vigor in her own voice.

"Proceed," said Mulrooney obstinately.

"In the first place you ought to let Lucky Cavanaugh out of jail at once, and tell the newspapers that he is perfectly innocent."

"Why?"

Leni tossed her golden head, the feeling of power surging through her stronger than before.

"Why? Because he is innocent, in the first place. I don't care about this foolish evidence you speak of. Your common sense should tell you he didn't kill any woman. He is no value to you locked up in a cell. Release him and he will do anything on earth to find who fired that shot. Have you never learned that two and two make four, Mr. Detective?"

When he was in doubt, Mulrooney always grunted. It gave him a sensation of integrity.

CRITICIZES MULROONEY

"I proceeded on a broad-minded theory after the Kruger murder—and look what's happened next!" he said stubbornly. "I know all about two and two making four. And I know where there's a murder there's always a motive. You're the best motive I've thought of so far. You say you weren't jealous of that woman?"

A derisive smile formed on Leni's lips.

"Why should I be? She meant nothing to Lucky. He wanted to get rid of her."

Mulrooney pounced upon her words like a cat upon a mouse. "He wanted to get rid of her, did he?"

"Oh, not that way!" Leni cried, disgustedly. "You are just like these detectives in screen plays. Even your wife would know more about human nature than you do. You ought to ask her advice sometime."

"I do," Mulrooney admitted, relaxing somewhat. "But you and Cavanaugh have kept me so busy lately I haven't seen much of her. Anyway—I'm going to hold Cavanaugh a while longer."

"You can't convict him!"

Mulrooney sighed as though in defeat. He dropped back into the chair which he detested with every evidence of helplessness.

"I'm not going to let Cavanaugh loose," he said slowly,

The Junior Patrol Mail Box

Read any good books lately, fellows?

We're very anxious to know if you are spending just part of your time reading this summer. The libraries are full of books of adventures, books which tell how to make and do things, books which describe the lives of great men.

If you can read, you are missing a lot if you don't read some good books this summer. Of course, there are plenty of good magazines, too—but how about the newspapers? Do you know what is going on in the world, fellows? And here's a tip, too, fellows—the time to start writing yourselves is right now.

When you write your letters into the Mail Box, write the news so that you know the other fellows in your neighborhood will enjoy reading it. Tell all about your adventures, and how happy you were able to make somebody by helping them. Put in their names and their correct addresses, and be very careful not to make mistakes.

Here's a letter today from Elizabeth Bissert, of 15 Forrest street, Millvale. Elizabeth writes:

"I am not a member of your club, but I would like to become one. I am sending in eight more pledges for my friends. I read the comic and the Mail Box daily. I like it very much. Last Tuesday, I started a club. I have eight members, or counting myself, nine members. We are going to pay dues every week until Christmas, then we will have a Christmas party."

That's great, Betty—it certainly is. All you need now is one more member in your club, and we can send you one of the swell Captain's armbands. Christmas seems far away to lots of people right now, but that is because they can't look ahead very far. We are glad that you have foresight that way. A party for which you have started to save in the summer will be lots more fun at Christmas time. What do you plan to do? We expect to hear from you again soon—with another member on your roll.

And now look at this letter from Jay Colbert, of 407 North Second street, Jeannette, Pa. He writes:

And there's the cartoon he drew, right in this Mail Box—what do you think of it? Old Pop-Eye talking things over with Bill, the Sailor. Yes, spinach and all vegetables are good for kids, and even if you don't like them the first time you try to eat them, it's easy to learn—and good for you.

THE LAND OWNERS ARE INTERESTED.

(The Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

There is great interest in a nudist (naked) colony that may be formed somewhere around Monett. The interest isn't in the possible prospect of seeing men and women going around naked. You can see that without the delay of a nudist colony. What's stirring up the interest at Monett is the chance to sell the real estate to the colony as its site for settlement

Logan McKee, Monett druggist, got an inquiry a short time ago from Miss Veri Mulaski, of Greenwich Village. Miss Mulaski was asking for prospective sites for this kind of a colony.

One land owner has offered a site which has no chiggers, not a cocklebur in a section, plenty of shade and a good spring.

The land owners hope Miss Mulaski will come to look over the sites.

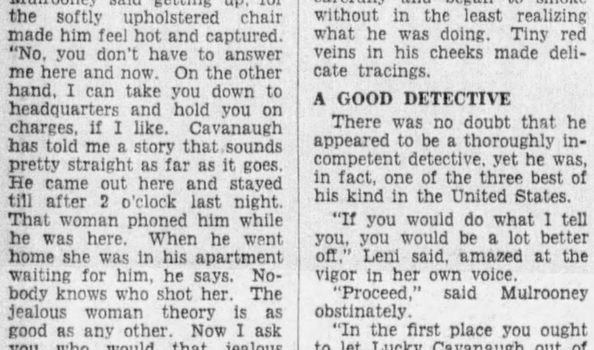
PATCHWORK QUILT PATTERN



ENDLESS CHAIN PATTERN 518

By LAURA WHEELER

The Endless Chain, made of but three different patch pieces, needs no explanation of its name. The links of the chain are formed by scraps of material, each link being made of different scraps. This fact makes this pattern especially fitting for a Friendship Quilt. What indeed could be more appropriate than the patches given by a friend forming a link in the chain of friendship?

Pattern No. 518 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Sentencing Postmasters For Life

Long about last March, we wrote that the time would soon arrive when a man wouldn't lose his job for marching in the wrong parade.

You notice what happened in July. Mr. Roosevelt instructed Mr. Jimmsy Farley to slap 15,000 postmasters on the civil service list and to make the hemstitching very pretty and tight.

That means the end of national campaign committees consolidating their front line trenches through a series of snares, pitfalls and prairie dog tunnels. All the cheering in recent conventions has been led by bulldozed government employes trying to validate their precarious and poorly paid jobs.

You must admit that the government service spins a complete web across the country. One man in the driver's seat can crack his threatening whip around a lot of ears.

When the word filters out to get into line or scrammister into the glorious outdoors you know that all the boys are going to back into the shafts and stick out their necks for the hoss collar.

A job is a job. Up to date it has only been for a set of four years unless your side won. You can't blame an employe for doing what the teacher says. He's got to eat and so does his family. The winning side always kicks out the losers and so far it has always seemed a legitimate offshot of the patronage system. We think it was started by Andy Jackson and has been elaborated upon considerably.

Now, we are back to the original idea. A postmaster can feel so safe he can leave the postoffice in trust to his family. We think the duration of the trust is for two lives and 21 years. As we are starting in a Democratic administration it is reasonable to presume that the present incumbents will be present for a long time.

This may make the Republicans very indignant and patriotic. But, it's their own fault for not thinking of it first.

It never makes much difference to us whether the suburban handwriting experts are Republican or Democratic. The routine is always about the same. Our postmaster never gives up a letter unless we guess who it's from. He surrenders postcards freely, but likes to hold his ear against mysterious packages and shake them up. We hope he passes the civil service test and remains in power for many another long, weary year. We've got him broken in, he has us broken up, and we don't want to start telling our business to a complete stranger.

The Harriman Bank and the New York Clearing House Association

THE CASE of the Harriman National Bank has turned out to be in some respects the case of the New York Clearing House Association.

The irregularities which brought about the bank's downfall—the false book entries, the faked accounts, the use of depositors' balances, etc.—are of the type which tragic experience has made only too familiar.

If this were all there is to the case of the Harriman bank, it would not be one of striking interest nor call for extended comment. But there is much more to it than this,—as becomes clear in the light of the following facts:

1—The New York Clearing House Association was informed of the condition of the bank in the early part of July, 1932.

3—It was kept open notwithstanding its insolvent condition until closed on March 6th, 1933, nine months thereafter, never to reopen.

4—Throughout this period and despite the known insolvency of the bank, deposits were invited and received from an unsuspecting public, which was later to discover that it had been duped and betrayed.

IT MAY be asked, what was the government doing all this time?

What about the federal banking law, designed to protect depositors in national banks?

What of the Comptroller of the Currency, who is charged with the supervision and examination of national banks, and whose duty under the law is to close a bank when its condition is impaired and the continued receipt of deposits would be a fraud upon the public?

Here again it is manifest how completely the Harriman bank case has become the case of the New York Clearing House Association.

The association is an old and honorable body. It embraces in its membership all the leading banks of the great financial metropolis of New York.

It is supposed to embody and INSTITUTIONALIZE the highest traditions of the banking profession—the sensitive honor, the high scruple as a trustee and vigilance as a custodian, which legend rather than contemporary opinion ascribes to the banker.

CONSCIOUS of its pretensions, if not observant of its duties, the Clearing House Association loftily assured the Comptroller of the Currency that there was no occasion for its intervention in the matter.

Of course not. The Clearing House Association had taken the situation in hand and would see its "member" through!

What more was to be said? The federal authorities apparently thought nothing more was to be said—or done.

Month after month passed. The deposits flowed steadily in. The insolvency grew steadily worse.

But the Clearing House Association was in charge.

"The Clearing House members have voluntarily imposed upon themselves rigid standards of practice for the protection of their own interests and the interests of their depositors."—So ran the advertisements of the Clearing House Association, published broadly in the press.

"The Association requires weekly reports from the members and makes periodical examinations of the condition of each bank"—continue these broadcast advertisements.

"These examinations give particular attention to the soundness of the assets of each member, and are made in the light of intimate knowledge of the affairs of the New York banks and of general conditions."

WHY SHOULD the Comptroller of the Currency examine or worry about a bank, even if known to be impaired, which is a member of the Clearing House Association?

What does the occasional examination of a bank examiner amount to, anyway, compared to the "weekly reports" required of its members by the Clearing House Association, and the latter's recurrent examinations with "particular attention to the soundness of the assets of each member?" ber?"

But there is more to it!

If you will examine the facsimile of one of these advertisements of the New York Clearing House Association which we reproduce on this page, you will see that:

"If you are a depositor of a Clearing House bank you can feel that, in addition to the safeguards provided through federal and state supervision, your funds have the PROTECTION AFFORDED BY MEMBERSHIP in an organization whose fundamental purpose is to assure sound banking."

WELL, THE depositors of the Harriman bank are in a better position to estimate the value of such assurances than anyone else.

The Harriman National Bank and Trust Company was a member of the Clearing House Association. Its depositors had all the protection for their funds "afforded by membership in the Association," which they were assured went FAR BEYOND THE SAFEGUARDS provided through federal and state supervision.

Now many members of the Clearing House Association insist that the association's assurances amounted to nothing, and that there is no legal obligation on the part of the association to make good to the depositors of the Harriman bank who had faith in the association's assurances.

Must the depositors go to court to make the Clearing House Association live up to its assurances; and without the compulsion of the law is the word of the association worthless?

THE NEW YORK CLEARING HOUSE ASSOCIATION

ORGANIZED 1853

"The Maintenance of Conservative Banking through Wise and Intelligent Cooperation"

An excerpt from the Constitution of the New York Clearing House Association

"The objects of the Association shall be the effecting at one place of the daily exchanges between the members thereof and the payment of the balances resulting from such exchanges, the promotion of the interests of the members and the maintenance of conservative banking through wise and intelligent cooperation."

A Safeguard for Six Billions of Bank Deposits

Total Capital	$611,625,300
Total Surplus and Undivided Profits	1,099,230,400
Average Net Deposits	6,362,883,000

Realizing the responsibilities involved in the care of these funds, the Clearing House members have voluntarily imposed upon themselves rigid standards of practice for the protection of their own interests and the interests of their depositors.

The Association requires weekly reports from the members and makes periodical examinations of the condition of each bank. These examinations give particular attention to the soundness of the assets of each member, and are made in the light of intimate knowledge of the affairs of the New York banks and of general conditions.

If you are a depositor of a Clearing House bank you can feel that, in addition to the safeguards provided through Federal and State supervision, your funds have the protection afforded by membership in an organization whose fundamental purpose is to assure sound banking.

THE MEMBERS OF THE NEW YORK CLEARING HOUSE ASSOCIATION ARE:

Bank of America National Association
Bank of New York & Trust Co.
Bank of the Manhattan Company
Bankers Trust Company
Central Hanover Bank and Trust Company
Chase National Bank of the City of New York
Chatham Phenix National Bank & Trust Company
Chemical Bank & Trust Company
Commercial National Bank & Trust Company
Continental Bank of New York
Corn Exchange Bank Trust Company
Equitable Trust Company of New York
Fidelity Trust Company of New York
Fifth Avenue Bank of New York
First National Bank
Guaranty Trust Company of New York
Harriman National Bank & Trust Company
Irving Trust Company
Lawyers Trust Company
National City Bank of New York
New York Trust Company
Seaboard Bank of the City of New York
Title Guarantee & Trust Company

Facsimile reproduction of New York Clearing House Association advertisement, published September 16, 1929, wherein the Association discussed its "rigid standards of practice" and reminded depositors of the "protection" afforded them by banking memberships in an organization "whose fundamental purpose is to assure sound banking." The Harriman National Bank and Trust Company is listed as a member, in the third column of names.

Municipal Extravagance

The Western Pennsylvania branch of the National Economy League is doing good service in calling attention to municipal extravagance in both the city and county governments.

Here, for instance, is a challenging item in its current "Activities Bulletin" concerning the finances of the city, based, we are told, on the Controller's report:

Population increase	30.65%
Budget increase	130.07%
Per capita increase	76.06%
Net bonded debt increase	143.15%
Per capita increase	107.46%
Debt service increase	110.07%
Per capita increase	60.83%

And here is an item concerning the county government that is also a challenge:

"The report of the Coroner of Allegheny County indicates that 738 bodies passed through the County Morgue during 1932, an average of about two for each day of the year. The report of the County Controller for the same year shows that eight embalmers were employed by the Coroner, each at a monthly salary of $190, and the Coroner's report gives their names."

Candidates for Mayor and for five seats in the City Council are now before the people. Among them are the present holders of these offices, some of whom have been connected with the administration of the city government for many years. What have they to say about the figures of the National Economy League?

Let the citizens hear more about these matters.

Can this huge increase in the cost of government be justified? Or is it indefensible?

We are to elect a Coroner this fall, too, and the incumbent seeks another term. What has he to say about the eight embalmers? And what do the rival candidates think about it?

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up an. talked to a broke and vagabonding friend in London who reversed charges leaving me all day with the molly-grubs. A note from Faith Baldwin, she has four youngsters instead of the two I stated. And Alice Lambert sends her new book, "Lost Fragrance," which quotes from my c mn.

My chore done, my wife and I to Brooklyn to see a newly whelped litter of Boston puppies, there being 13, the largest ever I saw. Then to Emily Vanderbilt's and talked to her new husband, Raoul Whitfield, and Elsie Arden sang a semi-blue chant "It's Your Last Trip, Titantic!", creepingly dramatic.

James Montgomery Flagg, like all good speakers, has off moments. Recently at a Long Island gathering he was suddenly called upon. So suddenly he floundered through a few halting sentences and sat down in confusion. "Flagg," moaned the irrepressible Jeff Machamer, "at half mast!"

* * *

No one in the artist set tapped the Fountain of Youth so successfully as Jim Flagg. According to records he was born in 1877, yet no one would judge him more than 35. Trim as a trained athlete, there is not a gray hair in his head, and despite years of bending over the drawing board, not the slightest stoop. And his spirit is just as juvenile as his appearance. He rarely misses a party and is usually last to say goodbye.

London was the most restless of sleepers. His nights were a torture of tossing and tumbling. Often he would drop off a few minutes and then quickly awaken, seized with some idea which consumed him and made slumber impossible. In later years he had a triple sized bed. Otherwise he would flop himself to the floor during the night.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Denatured Marriage

Somebody is always trying to denature marriage. Somebody is always inventing a new gadget for the dear old institution to make it easier and smoother, or trying to camouflage it, so that you won't recognize it!

* * *

You'd fancy it was castor-oil! Or spinach! If half the ingenuity had been expended in inventing new ways of disguising spinach and carrots, that has been used up in trying to make marriage seem like "something different," this would be a better and sweeter world.

* * *

Already, we have more than fifty-seven varieties of marriage to choose from. You can take it straight, as grandmother did—the old fashioned marriage, in which the husband bosses the house and brings home the bacon, and the wife sews on his buttons and says "Yes, darling."

* * *

Or you can have the fifty-fifty brand, in which both members of the firm bring home pay envelopes and have a vote.

* * *

You can have a whole-time "till-death-us-do-part" marriage; or you can choose a part-time "until-we-bore-each-other" marriage. You can marry for life, for love, for convenience, for adventure—or just for a trip to Reno.

* * *

So now with the approval of a number of authors and psychologists, an absolutely NEW and positively painless form of marriage is being exploited. THE most completely denatured brand of matrimony ever suggested!

* * *

According to this new theory, a husband and wife should not attempt to live together in the same house. They should have separate quarters, in the same city, perhaps, but not so near as to get on each other's nerves or to squabble over the shower or listen in on each other's telephone calls.

* * *

Bologney, macaroni, spaghetti! Fancy two business partners occupying separates suites of offices, employing separate office forces, and meeting each other only on the golf links!

* * *

Marriage, like any other partnership, is a MERGER! A merger of interests, ambitions, work and hopes! You marry, not in order to keep up your illusions or to gratify your desires but in order to get a PARTNER, with whom to build up a life. A companion with whom to share things—your secrets, your doubts, your triumphs, your troubles, your jokes, your dinners, your raptures and your heartaches.

* * *

* * *

Twin establishments for husband and wife may be more advanced and modernistic than twin beds—but they don't make a MARRIAGE! Saying good-morning and good-night over the telephone may be all right during courtship but fancy having to ring your darling up at 3 a. m. to find out if he's got enough covers on him or is sleeping in a draught!
